NEW QUESTION # 21

Universal Containers (UC) is using CRM Analytics to create two datasets.

* Dataset A: Contains a list of activities with an "activityID" dimension and a "userID" dimension

* Dataset B: Contains a list of users with a "userID" dimension

UC wants to delete all activities from Dataset A related to users in Dataset B.

How should the CRM Analytics consultant help UC achieve this?

- A. Use the combination of recipe transformations: "join" and "filter".
- B. Use the "update" transformation and utilize the "filter" node.
- C. Use the recipe node "delete" and set "userID" as the deletion ID.

Answer: A

Explanation:

In CRM Analytics, when dealing with two datasets, such as Dataset A (activities) and Dataset B (users), and you want to delete records from Dataset A based on the users listed in Dataset B, you would typically use a combination of a join and filter transformation in a recipe. The join transformation allows you to combine data from both datasets based on the shared userID dimension, and the filter transformation would then be used to delete or exclude any activities from Dataset A that are associated with the users from Dataset B. This approach ensures that only relevant activities remain in Dataset A after filtering out the unwanted ones.

NEW QUESTION # 22

Cloud Kicks (CK) has a dashboard in CRM Analytics with forecasting data. One widget is a compare table using the timeseries function showing the quarterly forecast. However, CK is interested in enhancing the dashboard with a weekly forecast per customer. How should CK achieve this?

- A. An SAQL query with @ timeseries statement specifying Account Name as the partition and Y-M-D as the Date Cols
- B. An SAQL query with a timeseries statement specifying Opportunity Name as the partition and Y-M-W as the Date Cols
- C. An SAQL query with a timeseries statement specifying Account Name as the partition and Y-M-W as the Date Cols

Answer: C

Explanation:

To create a weekly forecast per customer, an SAQL (Salesforce Analytics Query Language) query can be used.

The timeseries function generates forecast data based on a specified date range. In this case, the forecast is customer-specific, meaning the partition should be based on Account Name to ensure that the forecast is generated for each customer. The date column (Date Cols) should be set to Y-M-W to aggregate the forecast data on a weekly basis.
