NEW QUESTION # 118

Which of the following increases pressure on natural resources?

- A. Economic recession
- B. Population growth
- C. Declining life expectancy

Answer: B

Explanation:

Population growth increases pressure on natural resources. As the population grows, the demand for resources such as water, food, energy, and land intensifies, leading to greater exploitation and potential depletion of these resources.

Increased Demand: A growing population requires more resources to meet its needs. This includes more agricultural land for food production, more water for consumption and irrigation, and more energy for household and industrial use.

Resource Depletion: Higher demand for natural resources can lead to over-extraction and depletion. For example, excessive groundwater withdrawal can lead to aquifer depletion, while overfishing can deplete fish stocks.

Environmental Impact: Population growth can lead to environmental degradation, including deforestation, loss of biodiversity, and increased greenhouse gas emissions. The expansion of human activities often encroaches on natural habitats, leading to a decline in ecosystem health.

NEW QUESTION # 119

When an external auditor's performance materiality level is 60% of its overall materiality threshold, the auditor most likely:

- A. Has a low level of confidence in the company's financial controls
- B. Will apply tailored audit procedures for the smallest 40% of the company's segments
- C. Uses a sample that covers 60% of the total number of the company's transactions during the financial year

Answer: A

Explanation:

If the auditor sets performance materiality at 60% of the overall materiality threshold, it indicates a low level of confidence in the company's financial controls. This suggests that the auditor believes there is a higher risk of misstatements, requiring more conservative thresholds during the audit. ### NEW QUESTION # 120

Which of the following social factor scenarios is most likely to affect revenue forecasting?

- A. Fines related to occupational health and safety failures
- B. High employee turnover related to poor human capital management
- C. Consumer boycotts related to controversial sourcing

Answer: C

Explanation:

Social Factor Scenarios Affecting Revenue Forecasting:

Revenue forecasting can be influenced by various social factors that impact a company's sales and customer base. Among the given options, consumer boycotts related to controversial sourcing are most likely to directly affect revenue forecasting.

1. Consumer Boycotts: Consumer boycotts occur when customers refuse to purchase a company's products or services due to disagreements with its practices or policies. In the case of controversial sourcing, if a company is perceived to engage in unethical or unsustainable sourcing practices, it can lead to significant public backlash and consumer boycotts. This directly affects the company's revenue as it loses sales and market share.

2. Fines Related to Occupational Health and Safety Failures: While fines due to occupational health and safety failures represent a financial cost and can damage a company's reputation, they typically have a more direct impact on expenses and liabilities rather than immediate revenue.

3. High Employee Turnover: High employee turnover due to poor human capital management affects operational efficiency and costs related to hiring and training. However, its impact on revenue is more indirect compared to consumer boycotts.

Reference from CFA ESG Investing:

Revenue Impact of Social Factors: The CFA Institute discusses how social factors, such as consumer perceptions and behaviors, can significantly impact a company's revenue. Consumer boycotts can lead to immediate and noticeable reductions in sales, making this scenario particularly relevant for revenue forecasting.

ESG Integration: Understanding the direct and indirect effects of social factors on financial performance is crucial for integrating ESG considerations into revenue forecasting and overall financial analysis.

In conclusion, consumer boycotts related to controversial sourcing are most likely to affect revenue forecasting, making option A the verified answer.
