NEW QUESTION # 77

Which card in the Application cluster allows you to enable modules?

- A. Settings
- B. Configure
- C. Tools
- D. Enable Features
- E. Cube Editor

Answer: B

Explanation:

In Oracle Planning 2024, the Application cluster in the navigator includes cards for managing application settings and features. The card that allows you to enable modules (e.g., Workforce, Projects) is:

* A. Settings: Incorrect. Settings is not a card in the Application cluster; it's typically a broader system-level option, not specific to module enablement.

* B. Configure: Correct. The Configure card in the Application cluster provides access to the Enable Features page, where administrators can turn on modules like Financials, Workforce, or Projects.

* C. Tools: Incorrect. The Tools card offers utilities (e.g., diagnostics, job scheduling), not module enablement.

* D. Enable Features: Incorrect. While "Enable Features" is the specific action/page, it is accessed via the Configure card, not a standalone card in the Application cluster.

* E. Cube Editor: Incorrect. Cube Editor is for managing cube structures (e.g., dimensions), not enabling modules.

The Oracle documentation specifies that the Configure card is the entry point for enabling modules, making B the correct answer.

NEW QUESTION # 78

In which two ways do parent/child relationships between approval unit hierarchy members affect the review process?

- A. When you approve a parent. Its children are Signed Off.
- B. When the status of all children changes to one status (for example, Signed Off) the parent status changes to the same status.
- C. After all children are promoted to the same owner, the parent is promoted to the owner.
- D. After all children are promoted to the same owner, the parent status is changed to Signed Off.

Answer: B,C

Explanation:

In Oracle Planning 2024, the approval process uses an approval unit hierarchy where parent and child relationships influence the review workflow. The two ways these relationships affect the process are:

* A. When the status of all children changes to one status (for example, Signed Off), the parent status changes to the same status: Correct. In a bottom-up approval process, when all child approval units reach a uniform status (e.g., Signed Off, Approved), the parent's status automatically updates to match, reflecting the completion of the children's review.

* B. When you approve a parent, its children are Signed Off: Incorrect. Approving a parent does not automatically sign off its children; the workflow typically moves bottom-up, requiring children to be approved first.

* C. After all children are promoted to the same owner, the parent status is changed to Signed Off:

Incorrect. Promotion to an owner changes ownership, not necessarily status (e.g., Signed Off). Status changes are driven by approval actions, not just ownership.

* D. After all children are promoted to the same owner, the parent is promoted to the owner: Correct. In the approval hierarchy, once all child units are promoted to a new owner (e.g., for review), the parent unit is also promoted to that owner, ensuring the hierarchy progresses together.

The Oracle documentation confirms that A (status aggregation) and D (owner promotion) are key behaviors of parent/child relationships in the approval process, making them the correct answers.
