WGU VPC2Data-Driven Decision MakingC207 Sample Questions (Q38-Q43):

NEW QUESTION # 38

The U.S. Postal Service wants to know if local first-class mail is being delivered within two days of postmark. Which key performance indicator (KPI) should the Postal Service use?

- A. On-time performance
- B. Employee morale index
- C. Incentive performance rate

- D. Customer satisfaction

Answer: A

Explanation:

On-time performance is the most appropriate KPI for measuring whether mail is delivered within a specified timeframe. In data-driven decision making, KPIs must align directly with operational objectives.

The Postal Service's goal is to assess delivery timeliness. On-time performance measures the percentage of mail delivered within the expected service standard, making it a direct and objective indicator.

Customer satisfaction and employee morale provide valuable insights but do not directly measure delivery speed. Incentive performance rate is unrelated to delivery outcomes.

Therefore, the correct answer is C, on-time performance.

NEW QUESTION # 39

A researcher wants to estimate the average wholesale price of a gallon of gas in the United States. Several gas station owners along the East Coast are asked what price they pay wholesale for a gallon of gas. The researcher then averages these values for the sample mean price of a gallon of gas. Which problem would be discovered if this researcher's work were evaluated?

- A. There is response bias in the data.
- B. There is faulty calibration in the data collection.
- C. The sample data are not representative of the population.
- D. There is conscious bias in the data.

Answer: C

Explanation:

The key problem in this study is that the sample is not representative of the entire population. The researcher is attempting to estimate the average wholesale gas price for the whole United States, but only collects data from gas station owners along the East Coast. Because regional gas prices can differ due to transportation costs, taxes, regulations, supply conditions, and market structure, using only one geographic area creates a sampling problem. A representative sample should reflect the diversity of the full population being studied. In this case, the population includes gas stations from all parts of the country, not just one region. There is no information suggesting faulty calibration, since no measuring instrument is involved. Response bias is also not the primary issue because the scenario does not indicate that respondents are misreporting prices.

Conscious bias is less appropriate because the most obvious flaw is the limited sampling frame. This is a classic example of sampling bias caused by undercoverage. Therefore, the correct answer is that the sample data are not representative of the population.

NEW QUESTION # 40

Which type of analysis determines whether there was a significant difference in the average donor solicitation amount between three nonprofit hospital events?

- A. Cluster
- B. ANOVA
- C. Time series
- D. Logistic regression

Answer: B

Explanation:

Analysis of Variance (ANOVA) is used to compare the means of three or more groups to determine whether statistically significant differences exist. In data-driven decision making, ANOVA is appropriate when evaluating differences across multiple categories.

In this scenario, the analyst is comparing average donor solicitation amounts across three separate events.

ANOVA tests whether at least one group mean differs from the others.

Cluster analysis groups data, time series examines trends over time, and logistic regression predicts categorical outcomes. Therefore, the correct answer is D, ANOVA.

NEW QUESTION # 41

Research data indicate 95% confidence in a study in which subjects who were shown a product advertisement exhibited brand awareness compared to a control group who did not see the advertisement.

What can be concluded from this study?

- A. Five percent of the subjects did not like the advertisement.
- B. Ninety-five percent of the subjects liked the brand.
- C. The advertisement was effective in building brand awareness.
- D. The advertisement was effective in increasing sales.

Answer: C

Explanation:

A 95% confidence result indicates a statistically significant difference between groups. Since the measured outcome is brand awareness, the correct conclusion is that the advertisement was effective in increasing brand awareness. Confidence levels do not measure sales, preference, or dislike. Therefore, the correct answer is B.

NEW QUESTION # 42

How is a cause-and-effect diagram used?

- A. To assign blame for manufacturing problems
- B. As a software tool to automatically generate a business process diagram
- C. To brainstorm possible root causes for an intermittency problem
- D. As a financial risk calculation tool for a new product release

Answer: C

Explanation:

A cause-and-effect diagram, also known as an Ishikawa diagram or fishbone diagram, is used to brainstorm and organize possible root causes of a problem. It helps teams think systematically about why a problem may be occurring by grouping causes into logical categories such as methods, materials, people, equipment, and environment. In the scenario given, an intermittency problem suggests an issue that happens irregularly and may be difficult to isolate, which makes a cause-and-effect diagram especially useful. Its purpose is not to assign blame but to support structured problem-solving and root cause analysis. It is also not a financial risk tool or an automated software diagram generator. In quality management and data-driven improvement, this diagram encourages teams to explore multiple contributing factors before deciding on corrective action.

Therefore, the correct answer is that it is used to brainstorm possible root causes for an intermittency problem.
