VMware Cloud Foundation 9.0 Administrator Sample Questions (Q12-Q17):

NEW QUESTION # 12

An administrator creates a custom alert in VCF Operations for a VM with a symptom definition: "Read Latency > 1 ms." The alert should trigger immediately once the symptom condition occurs. What additional step is required to ensure the alert functions?

- A. Create a new Payload Template.
- B. Create an instance of the REST Notification Plugin.
- C. Enable the alert in an Active Policy.
- D. Create and enable a super metric for read latency in the Active Policy.

Answer: C

Explanation:

Comprehensive and Detailed

The VCF Operations 9.0 Monitoring Guide specifies: "For any alert definition to be active in the environment, it must be associated with and enabled in an Active Policy." . Creating symptom and alert definitions only defines conditions; they do not generate alerts until policies include them. REST notification plugins or payload templates are used for outbound integrations, not for enabling alerts. A super metric is only needed for custom composite KPIs, not for native read latency which is a standard metric already available. Therefore, the required step is to enable the alert in an Active Policy so that when the symptom triggers (latency > 1 ms), the alert activates.

NEW QUESTION # 13

An administrator is deploying a new VCF instance in an existing fleet. Which three components must be deployed? (Choose three.)

- A. vSphere Supervisor
- B. VCF Installer
- C. VCF Automation
- D. SDDC Manager
- E. NSX Manager
- F. vCenter

Answer: D,E,F

Explanation:

Each new VCF instance requires its own management domain consisting of vCenter Server, NSX Manager cluster, and SDDC Manager.

vCenter (A) is required to manage ESXi hosts and clusters.

NSX Manager (D) provides software-defined networking for the instance.

SDDC Manager (E) is the lifecycle and management component central to each VCF instance.

NEW QUESTION # 14

An administrator is configuring a virtual infrastructure that supports a mix of workloads, including database servers, file servers, and web applications. The administrator is considering implementing memory tiering.

What is a use case for enabling memory tiering?

- A. Optimizing memory usage for large, memory-intensive workloads like in-memory databases.
- B. Boosting CPU throughput for compute-heavy web applications.
- C. Enhancing availability during host hardware failures by decreasing dependency on external storage.
- D. Minimizing swap usage for virtual machines with small memory sizes.

Answer: A

Explanation:

Memory tiering in modern vSphere environments allows hosts to utilize different memory technologies (e.g., DRAM and persistent memory tiers) to optimize cost and performance.

The vSphere documentation explains:

"Memory tiering enables efficient placement of memory pages across different memory types, optimizing performance and capacity for memory-intensive workloads." The primary use case is for:

Large in-memory databases

Analytics workloads

Memory-intensive applications

Incorrect options:

It does not primarily reduce swap for small VMs (A).

It does not directly boost CPU throughput (B).

It does not address host availability during hardware failure (C).

Thus, memory tiering is best suited for optimizing memory usage for large, memory-intensive workloads.

NEW QUESTION # 15

How can an administrator ensure that certain VMs run on separate hosts for availability or licensing reasons?

- A. Use VM-VM Anti-Affinity rules in DRS
- B. Enable HA Admission Control
- C. Configure Storage vMotion to relocate disks
- D. Create a Resource Pool with a high share value

Answer: A

Explanation:

VM-VM Anti-Affinity rules in DRS direct VMs to not run on the same host. A Resource Pool with a high share value does not prevent co-location, and Storage vMotion or HA Admission Control do not specifically separate VMs across hosts at runtime.

NEW QUESTION # 16

An administrator has been tasked with configuring the external connectivity for a Virtual Private Cloud (VPC) within a new VMware NSX project. The Transit Gateway (TGW) associated with the project will use VLAN(s) and external subnets to connect the VPC to the physical routers.

What prerequisite must the administrator ensure is completed before starting the configuration of the external connection?

- A. All the hosts running VPC workloads must have access to the VLAN(s) used by the Distributed TGW.
- B. The vSphere cluster must have a Transport Node Profile (TNP) attached to it.
- C. All the hosts running VPC workloads must have access to the Edge TEP network.
- D. TWO BGP Peers must be set up on the Distributed TGW for dynamic routing.

Answer: B
