Cisco Certified Support Technician (CCST) IT Support Sample Questions (Q559-Q564):

NEW QUESTION # 559

If a malware infection is confirmed on a company server, what is the most appropriate next step to mitigate the threat?

- A. Notify all employees about the malware infection
- B. Update the server's operating system
- C. Isolate the server and begin a forensic analysis
- D. Shut down the server to prevent further usage

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 560

A network administrator is deploying a new Ethernet network in an office setting and needs to choose the appropriate type of cabling. The network requires 1 Gbps speed and minimal susceptibility to electromagnetic interference (EMI). What type of UTP (Unshielded Twisted Pair) cable should the IT support technician recommend?

- A. Category 3
- B. Category 5
- C. Category 6
- D. Category 5e

Answer: C

Explanation:

Correct Answer. D. Category 6 Category 6 UTP cable is recommended for environments requiring up to 1 Gbps speed while also providing enhanced protection against crosstalk and electromagnetic interference compared to earlier categories. This makes it suitable for modern office environments that may have moderate EMI from various electronic devices.

Option A is incorrect because Category 3 cables are outdated and only support speeds up to 10 Mbps.

Option B is incorrect because Category 5 cables are also outdated and were originally rated for up to 100 Mbps, not suitable for 1 Gbps networks.

Option C is incorrect because while Category 5e can support 1 Gbps, Category 6 offers better performance in terms of EMI protection and crosstalk.

NEW QUESTION # 561

During a PC Anywhere session, if a technician needs to access confidential files on the user's computer to troubleshoot an issue, what should they do?

- A. Transfer the files to their system for closer examination
- B. Proceed to access the files, assuming implicit consent for troubleshooting
- C. Notify the user and request explicit permission to access the specific files needed
- D. Ignore the files and try alternative troubleshooting methods that do not require access

Answer: C

Explanation:

Gaining explicit permission from the user before accessing confidential files is key to maintaining trust and ensuring compliance with privacy standards.

Option A is incorrect because assuming consent can lead to privacy violations and breaches of trust.

Option C is incorrect because transferring confidential files without strict necessity and proper security measures can create additional security risks.

Option D is incorrect as it might prevent the technician from addressing the issue effectively if accessing the files is necessary.
