How can SLA Compliance be best monitored in PowerProtect Data Manager?

- A. Using the SLA Compliance dashboard
- B. By performing regular manual audits
- C. Through manual log checks
- D. By setting manual email alerts

Answer: A

Explanation:

Monitoring the health of data protection across an enterprise is a primary administrative function.

PowerProtect Data Manager provides a dedicated SLA Compliance dashboard to streamline this process.

* SLA Compliance Dashboard: This centralized view provides real-time visibility into whether protected assets are meeting their defined Service Level Agreements (SLAs). It aggregates data from across the environment to show successful, failed, and missed backup windows.

* The Compliance Gap: The dashboard highlights "out-of-compliance" assets—those that do not have a valid recovery point within the time frame specified in their assigned protection policy.

* Proactive Management: Unlike manual log checks or audits, the dashboard allows administrators to quickly identify trends, such as specific asset types or protection engines that are consistently failing to meet objectives. It provides a high-level summary that can be "drilled down" into for granular details on specific job failures.
