CompTIA SecurityX Certification Exam Sample Questions (Q100-Q105):

NEW QUESTION # 100

To prevent data breaches, security leaders at a company decide to expand user education to:

- Create a healthy security culture.
- Comply with regulatory requirements
- Improve incident reporting

Which of the following would best meet their objective?

- A. Scheduling regular penetration tests
- B. Deploying fake ransomware
- C. Performing a DoS attack
- D. Simulating a phishing campaign

Answer: D

Explanation:

Simulating a phishing campaign helps users recognize phishing attempts and enhances overall security awareness. It is a practical way to improve incident reporting and ensure that users understand common attack vectors. This directly supports creating a healthy security culture, complying with regulatory requirements related to security training, and improving the response to security incidents.

NEW QUESTION # 101

A company needs to define a new roadmap for improving secure coding practices in the software development life cycle and implementing better security standards. Which of the following is the best way for the company to achieve this goal?

- A. Performing a Software Assurance Maturity Model (SAMM) assessment and generating a roadmap as a final result
- B. Conducting a threat-modeling exercise for the main applications and developing a roadmap based on the necessary security implementations
- C. Using the best practices in the OWASP secure coding manual to define a new roadmap
- D. Developing a new roadmap including secure coding best practices based on the security area roadmap and annual goals defined by the CISO

Answer: A

Explanation:

The best way is to perform a Software Assurance Maturity Model (SAMM) assessment. SAMM provides a structured framework to evaluate current software security maturity across people, process, and technology. The assessment highlights gaps and generates a roadmap tailored to the organization's development environment.

Option B (threat modeling) only applies to specific applications, not the entire SDLC process. Option C risks misalignment with technical practices by relying only on CISO goals. Option D (OWASP secure coding manual) is useful but provides guidelines, not a maturity-based roadmap.

CAS-005 stresses leveraging maturity models for structured, measurable improvements. SAMM directly addresses this by producing a customized, actionable roadmap for secure coding practices.

NEW QUESTION # 102

A company wants to install a three-tier approach to separate the web, database, and application servers. A security administrator must harden the environment. Which of the following is the best solution?

- A. Installing a firewall and making it the network core
- B. Configuring a SASB solution to restrict users to server communication
- C. Implementing microsegmentation on the server VLANs
- D. Deploying a VPN to prevent remote locations from accessing server VLANs

Answer: C

Explanation:

The best solution to harden a three-tier environment (web, database, and application servers) is to implement microsegmentation on the server VLANs. Here's why:

Enhanced Security: Microsegmentation creates granular security zones within the data center, allowing for more precise control over east-west traffic between servers. This helps prevent lateral movement by attackers who may gain access to one part of the network.

Isolation of Tiers: By segmenting the web, database, and application servers, the organization can apply specific security policies and controls to each segment, reducing the risk of cross-tier attacks.

Compliance and Best Practices: Microsegmentation aligns with best practices for network security and helps meet compliance requirements by ensuring that sensitive data and systems are properly isolated and protected.

NEW QUESTION # 103

During a security assessment using an EDR solution, a security engineer generates the following report about the assets in the system:

□ After five days, the EDR console reports an infection on the host OWIN23 by a remote access Trojan. Which of the following is the most probable cause of the infection?

- A. OWIN29 spreads the malware through other hosts in the network
- B. The EDR has an unknown vulnerability that was exploited by the attacker.
- C. LN002 was not supported by the EDR solution and propagates the RAT
- D. OWIN23 uses a legacy version of Windows that is not supported by the EDR

Answer: D

Explanation:

OWIN23 is running Windows 7, which is a legacy operating system. Many EDR solutions no longer provide full support for outdated operating systems like Windows 7, which has reached its end of life and is no longer receiving security updates from Microsoft. This makes such systems more vulnerable to infections and attacks, including remote access Trojans (RATs).

* A. OWIN23 uses a legacy version of Windows that is not supported by the EDR: This is the most probable cause because the lack of support means that the EDR solution may not fully protect or monitor this system, making it an easy target for infections.

* B. LN002 was not supported by the EDR solution and propagates the RAT: While LN002 is unmanaged, it is less likely to propagate the RAT to OWIN23 directly without an established vector.

* C. The EDR has an unknown vulnerability that was exploited by the attacker: This is possible but less likely than the lack of support for an outdated OS.

* D. OWIN29 spreads the malware through other hosts in the network: While this could happen, the status indicates OWIN29 is in a bypass mode, which might limit its interactions but does not directly explain the infection on OWIN23.
