IAPP Certified Artificial Intelligence Governance Professional Sample Questions (Q169-Q174):

NEW QUESTION # 169

Retrieval-Augmented Generation (RAG) is defined as?

- A. Combining LLMs with private knowledge bases to improve their outputs.
- B. Fine tuning LLMs to minimize biased outputs.
- C. Reducing computational processing requirements of the LLMs.
- D. Applying advanced filtering techniques to the LLMs.

Answer: A

Explanation:

Retrieval-Augmented Generation (RAG) enhances Large Language Models (LLMs) by integrating external, up-to-date, or proprietary information into the generation pipeline—allowing the model to fetch relevant facts from a trusted knowledge source at query time.

Though RAG is not defined directly in the IAPP documents, it is a widely recognized technique in AI governance for ensuring more accurate and contextually grounded outputs, especially in regulated or high-stakes environments where hallucinations are a concern.

* B, C, and D describe optimization or bias mitigation—not the core function of RAG.

NEW QUESTION # 170

A shipping service based in the US is looking to expand its operations into the EU. It utilizes an in-house developed multimodal AI model that analyzes all personal data collected from shipping senders and recipients, and optimizes shipping routes and schedules based on this data.

As they expand into the EU, all of the following descriptions should be included in the technical documentation for their AI model EXCEPT?

- A. A detailed description of the elements of the AI system and of the process for its development.
- B. A description of the appropriateness of the performance metrics for the specific AI system.
- C. A description of the prioritization of the risks of deployment of the AI system.
- D. A general description of the AI system.

Answer: C

Explanation:

The EU AI Act outlines what must be included in technical documentation for high-risk systems. These requirements are designed to support conformity assessment, transparency, and traceability.

From the AI Governance in Practice Report 2025:

"It mandates drawing up technical documentation... must include a general description of the AI system, the intended purpose, and a detailed description of the elements and development process." (p. 34)

"Documentation... includes training, testing, evaluation procedures, and appropriateness of performance metrics." (p. 34-35) The risk management system is addressed separately through a risk management plan, not within the technical documentation itself.

Thus:

* A, C, and D are explicitly required in the technical documentation.

* B, while important, is part of the risk management process, not a required section of technical documentation.

NEW QUESTION # 171

What is the best method to proactively train an LLM so that there is mathematical proof that no specific piece of training data has more than a negligible effect on the model or its output?

- A. Data compartmentalization.
- B. Clustering.
- C. Differential privacy.
- D. Transfer learning.

Answer: C

Explanation:

Differential privacy provides mathematical guarantees that individual data points have minimal influence on model outputs, protecting privacy during training.

NEW QUESTION # 172

All of the following are potential benefits of using private over public LLMs EXCEPT:

- A. Application for specific use cases within the enterprise.
- B. Reduction in possibility of hallucinated information.
- C. Confirmation of security and confidentiality.
- D. Reduction in time taken for data validation and verification.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Using a private LLM does not inherently reduce the possibility of hallucinations; hallucination is a core limitation of LLM architectures regardless of whether they are public or private.

NEW QUESTION # 173

An artist has been using an AI tool to create digital art and would like to ensure that it has copyright protection in the United States. Which of the following is most likely to enable the artist to receive copyright protection?

- A. Provide a log of the prompts the artist used to generate the images.
- B. Obtain a representation from the AI provider on how the tool works.
- C. Update the images in a creative way to demonstrate that it is the artist's.
- D. Ensure the tool was trained using publicly available content.

Answer: C

Explanation:

For the artist to receive copyright protection, the most effective approach is to demonstrate that the final artwork includes sufficient creative input by the artist. By updating or altering the images in a way that reflects the artist's personal creativity, the artist can claim originality, which is a core requirement for copyright protection under U.S. law. The other options do not directly address the originality and creative input required for copyright. This is highlighted in the sections on copyright protection in the IAPP AIGP Body of Knowledge.
