- A. The logistics specialist
- B. The planning specialist
- C. The communications lead
- D. The incident commander

Answer: B

Explanation:

Comprehensive and Detailed Explanation From Exact Extract:

In SRE incident management, Google defines several formal roles during a major incident, including Incident Commander (IC), Communications Lead, Operations/Responder, and Planning Specialist. According to the SRE Workbook: "The Planning Lead is responsible for maintaining the source-of-truth incident state document, tracking action items, and ensuring the IC has the current situation overview." (SRE Workbook - Chapter: Incident Management). This document contains timelines, changes, decisions, diagnostics, and action items-all crucial for reducing cognitive load during high-stress situations.

Option C-Planning Specialist-is therefore correct.

Option A (Logistics Specialist) is not defined as a core SRE incident role.

Option B (Communications Lead) manages outward communication, not the live incident log.

Option D (Incident Commander) leads the incident but delegates documentation to the planning role.

Hence, option C is the only answer that aligns with SRE's defined responsibilities.
