Cisco Understanding Cisco Cybersecurity Operations Fundamentals Sample Questions (Q398-Q403):

NEW QUESTION # 398

According to CVSS, what is a description of the attack vector score?

- A. The metric score will be larger when a remote attack is more likely.
- B. The metric score will be larger when it is easier to physically touch or manipulate the vulnerable component
- C. It depends on how many physical and logical manipulations are possible on a vulnerable component
- D. It depends on how far away the attacker is located and the vulnerable component

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 399

Refer to the exhibit.

What is occurring within the exhibit?

- A. cross-site scripting attack
- B. XML External Entities attack
- C. insecure deserialization
- D. regular GET requests

Answer: D

Explanation:

Based on the image details, the exhibit shows a series of HTTP requests with the method GET, which are used to retrieve data from a web server. There is no evidence of any malicious payload or parameter in these requests, so they are likely regular GET requests. The other options are types of web application attacks that exploit different vulnerabilities, such as XML External Entities, insecure deserialization, and cross-site scripting. NEW QUESTION # 400

Which classification of cross-site scripting attack executes the payload without storing it for repeated use?

- A. CSRF
- B. stored
- C. DOM
- D. reflective

Answer: D

Explanation:

Reflective XSS, also known as Non-Persistent XSS, occurs when an attacker sends a malicious script to a user through a web application, and the script is executed immediately in the user's browser without being stored on the server. This type of attack is typically carried out by including the malicious script in a URL, which is then sent to the victim. When the victim clicks on the link, the script runs in their browser, reflecting the attacker's actions without storing the payload for repeated use¹². Reference:: OWASP Foundation's documentation on Cross-Site Scripting (XSS) provides detailed information on the different types of XSS attacks, including Reflective XSS

NEW QUESTION # 401

Refer to the exhibit.

Which type of log is displayed?

- A. sys
- B. proxy
- C. NetFlow
- D. IDS

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 402

Refer to the exhibit.

In which Linux log file is this output found?

- A. /var/log/dmesg
- B. var/log/var.log
- C. /var/log/auth.log
- D. /var/log/authorization.log

Answer: C

Explanation:

The /var/log/auth.log file contains information about authentication and authorization events on a Linux system, such as successful and failed logins, sudo commands, and SSH sessions. The output in the exhibit shows a failed login attempt from a user named "root" using SSH.
