ASQ Certified Manager of Quality/Organizational Excellence Exam Sample Questions (Q87-Q92):

NEW QUESTION # 87

Which of the following actions by a customer will support long-term relations with a supplier?

- A. Training purchasing staff to facilitate communications between suppliers and end-users
- B. Scheduling regular meetings with the supplier to discuss plans and problem-solving options
- C. Creating opportunities for the supplier's quality engineers to meet with the purchasing staff
- D. Focusing on developing clear purchase orders and contract provisions

Answer: B

Explanation:

Building strong and lasting relationships with suppliers involves effective communication and collaboration.

Regular meetings provide an opportunity for both parties to discuss plans, address challenges, and find solutions together. By engaging in open dialogue, the customer can foster trust and mutual understanding, leading to better long-term relations. While other actions such as developing clear purchase orders, training purchasing staff, and creating opportunities for quality engineers are important, regular meetings directly contribute to ongoing cooperation and problem-solving.

NEW QUESTION # 88

Who has ultimate responsibility for quality in a service organisation?

- A. Executive management
- B. Process support personnel

- C. The quality manager
- D. Front-line service workers

Answer: A

Explanation:

According to the ASQ Certified Manager of Quality/Organizational Excellence Handbook, the ultimate responsibility for quality in a service organization lies with executive management. Executive management plays a critical role in setting the overall direction, policies, and strategic goals of the organization. They are responsible for creating a culture of quality, allocating resources, and ensuring that quality initiatives are aligned with the organization's mission and vision. While other roles (such as the quality manager, process support personnel, and front-line service workers) contribute to quality, it is executive management that holds the highest level of responsibility for quality outcomes¹.

According to Juran, the one element that is present in all corporate successes and absent in most failures is?

- A. properly trained quality staff
- B. positive market conditions
- C. top management involvement
- D. a reward and recognition program

Answer: C

Explanation:

According to Juran's philosophy on quality management, the critical element present in all corporate successes and absent in most failures is top management involvement. Juran emphasized that for quality initiatives to be successful, there must be a genuine commitment from top-level management. Without this commitment, efforts towards quality improvement are likely to be ineffective. The Juran Trilogy, which includes quality planning, quality control, and quality improvement, advocates for a company-wide dedication to quality, driven by a top-down approach where leadership plays a pivotal role in managing for quality excellence.
