NEW QUESTION # 81

An optical fiber cable comes with the specifications 50/125 μm .
What do the numbers represent?

- A. The first number represents the distance for a 10 Gb/s connection; the second number represents the distance for a 1 Gb/s connection.
- B. The first number represents the required distance to single-phase power cabling; the second number represents the required distance to three-phase cabling.
- C. The first number represents the diameter of the core; the second number represents the diameter of the cladding in microns.
- D. The first number represents the diameter of the core; the second number represents the actual diameter cable including the buffer and jacket.

Answer: C

Explanation:

Optical fiber cables are composed of a core, a cladding, and a coating. The core is the central part of the fiber that carries the light signal. The cladding is the layer surrounding the core that reflects the light back into the core and prevents signal loss. The coating is the protective layer that covers the cladding and provides mechanical strength and environmental protection. The specifications of an optical fiber cable indicate the dimensions of the core and the cladding in microns (#m), which are one millionth of a meter. For example, a 50/125 #m cable has a core diameter of 50 #m and a cladding diameter of 125 #m. The coating diameter is usually 250 #m, but it is not part of the specifications.

NEW QUESTION # 82

How many monitoring points should be used in Temperature Measurement?

- A. 0
- B. 1
- C. 2
- D. 3

Answer: B

Explanation:

According to the EPI Data Centre Professional (CDCP) Reference Materials, the recommended number of monitoring points for temperature measurement in a data centre is 3 per rack: one at the top, one at the middle, and one at the bottom¹. This is to ensure that the temperature distribution within the rack is uniform and within the acceptable range for the equipment. The temperature sensors should be placed at the front of the rack, where the air enters the equipment, and not at the back, where the hot air exits¹.

NEW QUESTION # 83

Which Class of Fire involves combustible metals or combustible metal alloys such as magnesium, sodium and potassium?

- A. Class C
- B. Class B
- C. Class D
- D. Class A

Answer: C

Explanation:

Class D fires involve combustible metals or combustible metal alloys such as magnesium, sodium and potassium. These metals can react violently with water, air, or other chemicals, and require special extinguishing agents¹. References: 1: EPI Data Centre Professional (CDCP) Reference Materials, page 16.

NEW QUESTION # 84

What factor should be considered when placing fluorescent lighting in the data centre?

- A. Fluorescent lights should not be connected to the same UPS that supports the ICT equipment.
- B. Fluorescent lights should not be connected to the back-up generator.
- C. Fluorescent lights should not be connected to the mains power supply.
- D. Fluorescent lights should only be installed in equipment supporting areas and not in the Computer /Server room.

Answer: A

Explanation:

The UPS (uninterruptible power supply) is a device that provides backup power to the ICT equipment in case of a power outage or a power quality issue. The UPS should be dedicated to the ICT equipment only, and not to other loads, such as lighting, cooling, or security systems. This is because connecting fluorescent lights to the same UPS as the ICT equipment can cause several problems, such as:

*Reducing the battery runtime of the UPS, which may not be enough to support the ICT equipment until the backup generator kicks in or the utility power is restored.

*Increasing the harmonic distortion of the UPS output, which can affect the performance and reliability of the ICT equipment and the UPS itself.

*Creating electromagnetic interference (EMI) or radio frequency interference (RFI), which can disrupt the communication and data transmission of the ICT equipment.

*Triggering false alarms or tripping the circuit breakers of the UPS, which can cause downtime or data loss.

Therefore, fluorescent lights should not be connected to the same UPS that supports the ICT equipment.

Instead, they should be connected to a separate power source, such as the utility power, the backup generator, or a different UPS.

NEW QUESTION # 85

What is the effect of a high relative humidity in the data centre?

- A. There is a risk of corrosion.
- B. In a data centre environment relative humidity is not important, only temperature matters.
- C. There is a risk of electrostatic discharge.
- D. There is a risk of not properly functioning of the smoke detectors.

Answer: A

Explanation:

High relative humidity in a data center can lead to corrosion of metal parts and electronic contacts, potentially causing failures.

Electrostatic discharge is a risk with low humidity, not high.
