According to the Cisco Catalyst 9800 Series Wireless Controller Software Configuration Guide¹, you can configure a time-based setting for WLAN-level Pre-Shared Keys (PSKs) that will reset the key after a specified interval. This feature is useful for enhancing security and preventing unauthorized access. If a user reports that the Wi-Fi worked for a week and now it does not work, you should check the WLAN-level PSK settings and see if the key has been changed.
