Option A: Screen-based Flow

Correct Answer.

A Screen Flow allows developers to build guided, interactive forms that collect information from users.

Flows can have multiple screens, validation rules, and branching logic.

They can be created declaratively without code, making them efficient to implement.

Benefits:

Efficient Development: No need for code.

User-Friendly: Provides a step-by-step interface.

Maintainable: Easy to update as requirements change.

Building a custom Lightning Component requires development effort.

For simple data collection, a Flow is more efficient.
