- A. one Subscriber Flow and one Server Flow
- B. a minimum of two Subscriber Flows
- C. a minimum of two Server Flows
- D. one Subscriber Flow and two Server Flows

Answer: C

Explanation:

When configuring SIP Trunking on the Avaya Session Border Controller for Enterprise (ASBCE), the system uses Server Flows to define the relationship between the SBC and the SIP entities on both sides of the trunk (the Service Provider/Carrier and the internal Session Manager).

Inbound Flow: One Server Flow is required to handle traffic coming from the Service Provider into your internal network. This flow typically includes rules for topology hiding and security policies to protect your Session Manager.
