NEW QUESTION # 94
After making a recent migration to Google Workspace, you updated your Google Cloud Directory Sync configuration to synchronize the global address list. Users are now seeing duplicate contacts in their global directory in Google Workspace. You need to resolve this issue.
What should you do?

- A. Update shared contact search rules to exclude internal users.
- B. Enable directory contact deduplication in the Google Workspace Admin panel.
- C. Create a new global directory, and delete the original.
- D. Train users to use Google Workspace's merge contacts feature.

Answer: A

Explanation:
* Access Admin Console: Log into your Google Workspace Admin Console.
* Update GCDS Configuration: Open the Google Cloud Directory Sync (GCDS) configuration.
* Modify Search Rules: Update the shared contact search rules within GCDS.
* Exclude Internal Users: Modify the rules to exclude internal users from being synchronized as shared contacts.
* Save and Sync: Save the updated configuration and perform a sync to apply the changes, which should resolve the issue of duplicate contacts in the global directory.

NEW QUESTION # 97
You are the Workspace administrator for an international organization with Enterprise Plus Workspace licensing. A third of your employees are located in the United States, another third in Europe, and the other third geographically dispersed around the world. European employees are required to have their data stored in Europe. The current OU structure for your organization is organized by business unit, with no attention to user location. How do you configure Workspace for the fastest end user experience while also ensuring that European user data is contained in Europe?

- A. Configure three configuration groups within your domain. Assign the appropriate data regions to each corresponding group, but assign no preference to the users outside of the United States and Europe.
- B. Configure a data region at the top level OU of your organization, and set the value to "Europe".
- C. Add three additional OU structures to designate location within the current OU structure. Assign the corresponding data region to each.
- D. Configure a configuration group for European users, and set the data region to "Europe".

Answer: D
