NEW QUESTION # 92

Which of the following options will achieve these requirements? (Choose two.)

- A. Security group rule that allows Internet traffic for port 443 in both inbound and outbound.
- B. Security group rule that allows inbound Internet traffic for port 443.
- C. Network ACL rule that allows port 443 inbound and all ports outbound for Internet traffic.
- D. Network ACL rule that allows port 443 for both inbound and outbound for all Internet traffic.
- E. Security group rule that denies all inbound Internet traffic except port 443.

Answer: B,D

NEW QUESTION # 93

A company has an API that receives real-time data from a fleet of monitoring devices. The API stores this data in an Amazon RDS DB instance for later analysis. The amount of data that the monitoring devices send to the API fluctuates. During periods of heavy traffic, the API often returns timeout errors.
After an inspection of the logs, the company determines that the database is not capable of processing the volume of write traffic that comes from the API. A solutions architect must minimize the number of connections to the database and must ensure that data is not lost during periods of heavy traffic.
Which solution will meet these requirements?

- A. Modify the DB instance to be a Multi-AZ DB instance. Configure the application to write to all active RDS DB instances.
- B. Modify the API to write incoming data to an Amazon Simple Notification Service (Amazon SNS) topic.
  Use an AWS Lambda function that Amazon SNS invokes to write data from the topic to the database.
- C. Increase the size of the DB instance to an instance type that has more available memory.
- D. Modify the API to write incoming data to an Amazon Simple Queue Service (Amazon SQS) queue. Use an AWS

Lambda function that Amazon SQS invokes to write data from the queue to the database.

Answer: D

Explanation:
Explanation
Using Amazon SQS will help minimize the number of connections to the database, as the API will write data to a queue instead of directly to the database. Additionally, using an AWS Lambda function that Amazon SQS invokes to write data from the queue to the database will help ensure that data is not lost during periods of heavy traffic, as the queue will serve as a buffer between the API and the database.

NEW QUESTION # 94

A global media streaming company is migrating its user authentication and content delivery services to AWS.
The company wants to use Amazon API Gateway for user authentication and authorization. The company needs a solution that restricts API access to AWS Regions in the United States and ensures minimal latency.
Which solution will meet these requirements?

- A. Create an API Gateway HTTP API. Configure an AWS WAF firewall in a different Region. Implement AWS WAF rules to deny requests that originate from Regions outside the United States. Associate the AWS WAF firewall with the API Gateway HTTP API.
- B. Create an API Gateway REST API. Configure an AWS WAF firewall in a different Region. Implement AWS WAF rules to deny requests that originate from Regions outside the United States. Associate the AWS WAF firewall with the API Gateway REST API.
- C. Create an API Gateway REST API. Configure an AWS WAF firewall in the same Region. Implement AWS WAF rules to deny requests that originate from Regions outside the United States. Associate the AWS WAF firewall with the API Gateway REST API.
- D. Create an API Gateway HTTP API. Configure an AWS WAF firewall in the same Region. Implement AWS WAF rules to deny requests that originate from Regions outside the United States. Associate the AWS WAF firewall with the API Gateway HTTP API.

Answer: C

Explanation:
AWS documentation states that for API Gateway REST APIs, AWS WAF must be deployed in the same Region to apply web access control lists. WAF geographic match rules can block requests from non-US Regions. Deploying the WAF and API Gateway in the same Region ensures minimal latency because the traffic does not traverse Regions.
Options B and C violate the requirement that WAF and API Gateway must be in the same Region. Option D uses HTTP API, which supports WAF only indirectly via regional ALBs, not directly as REST API does.
