NEW QUESTION # 76

An administrator has been experiencing performance issues with a SQL VM. To address these issues, the administrator migrated the database to a Volume Group. Following the migration, the performance issues have continued.

What should the administrator do to resolve these performance issues?

- A. use multiple vDisks in the Volume Group.
- B. Use multiple subnets for iSCSI traffic.
- C. Enable Jumbo Frames.
- D. Disable CHAP,

Answer: A

Explanation:

According to Nutanix Volumes - Recommendations And Best Practices1, "Multiple disks per Nutanix node may also improve an application's performance. For performance-intensive environments, we recommend using between four and eight disks per CVM for a given workload." Therefore, the administrator should use multiple vDisks in the Volume Group to distribute the SQL workload across more disks and nodes.
