ACAMS Certified Anti-Money Laundering Specialist (CAMS7 the 7th edition) CAMS7 Prüfungsfragen mit Lösungen (Q57-Q62):

57. Frage

A credit institution has been served with a preliminary findings report highlighting major deviations from AML obligations and stating that it faces the possible withdrawal of its banking license.

Which authority could have issued the report?

- A. A banking sector self-regulatory body
- B. AML supervisory authority
- C. Financial Action Task Force (FATF)
- D. Law enforcement authority

Antwort: B

Begründung:

An AML supervisory authority is responsible for overseeing compliance with AML/CFT obligations and has the legal power to conduct inspections, issue findings, impose sanctions, and recommend or enforce license withdrawal.

Supervisory authorities assess whether institutions comply with national AML laws and regulatory standards.

When major deficiencies are identified, they may issue a preliminary findings report outlining violations and potential enforcement actions, including license revocation.

Self-regulatory bodies lack the authority to withdraw banking licenses. Law enforcement agencies investigate criminal activity but do not supervise institutions or issue compliance findings reports. FATF is an international standard-setting body and does not conduct institution-level enforcement or issue sanctions.

Therefore, only an AML supervisory authority could issue such a report.

58. Frage

Common risks associated with cryptocurrency and convertible virtual currencies include: (Choose three.)

- A. funds being stolen from other users.
- B. layering transactions to hide the origin of funds derived from illicit activity.
- C. obscuring the source of illicit funds.
- D. facilitating payment for other illicit activities and goods.
- E. difficulty converting into physical currency.

Antwort: B,C,D

Begründung:

Cryptocurrency and convertible virtual currencies present common financial crime risks such as obscuring the origin of illicit funds, being used to layer transactions for money laundering, and facilitating payments for illegal goods and services due to their pseudo-anonymous and borderless nature.

59. Frage

The role of FATF-style regional bodies (FSRBs) is to; (Select Three.)

- A. coordinate technical assistance for members in their FSRB jurisdiction
- B. identify and address the current financial crime trends through the issuance of typologies originating in members outside of their FSRB's Jurisdiction.
- C. provide AML/CFT technical assistance needed by members in their FSRB jurisdiction.
- D. identify and address any gaps in the AML/CFT policies for members outside of their FSRB jurisdiction.

- E. set and amend the FATF 40 Recommendations for members in their FSRB jurisdiction.
- F. offer mutual evaluation and follow-up processes for members in their FSRB Jurisdiction.

Antwort: A,C,F

60. Frage

Which insurance product is considered the lowest risk for money laundering?

- A. Cash-secured products
- B. Permanent life insurance policies
- C. Annuity contracts
- D. Group insurance products

Antwort: D

Begründung:

Among insurance products, group insurance products are generally considered the lowest risk for money laundering, according to FATF and insurance-sector AML guidance.

Group insurance policies are typically employer-sponsored, cover a large number of individuals, and involve limited individual control over premium payments, beneficiaries, or payouts. These characteristics significantly reduce the opportunity for misuse as a money laundering vehicle.

By contrast, permanent life insurance policies and annuities often include investment components, cash surrender values, or flexible premium structures, which increase their attractiveness for laundering illicit funds. Cash-secured products may also present placement or layering risks depending on structure and liquidity.

Therefore, group insurance products pose the lowest inherent AML risk.

61. Frage

Trust and company service providers (TCSPs) should address money laundering risk by: (Select Three.)

- A. Establishing procedures to document the basis on which the TCSP will act as a registered officer for the client and retaining records of that involvement
- B. Gathering and recording information from clients to understand the purpose of the legal entity, as well as the identity of managers and ultimate beneficial owners
- C. Establishing dual controls and quality assurance practices when processing transactions for the client
- D. Considering what additional safeguards may be required when client instructions are given through another TCSP located in another jurisdiction
- E. Conducting an onsite evaluation of the client to assess internal controls
- F. Requiring the client to complete and submit an AML risk self-assessment to the jurisdiction's Financial Intelligence Unit (FIU)

Antwort: A,B,D

Begründung:

Trust and company service providers (TCSPs) are classified as higher-risk entities under FATF guidance due to their role in forming and managing legal structures. As a result, TCSPs must implement robust AML controls to mitigate misuse for money laundering.

A key requirement is gathering and recording detailed client information, including the purpose of the legal entity and the identity of managers and ultimate beneficial owners (UBOs). This supports effective customer due diligence and transparency.

TCSPs must also apply additional safeguards when relying on instructions from another TCSP, particularly one located in a different jurisdiction. Reliance on intermediaries increases risk and requires enhanced scrutiny.

Additionally, TCSPs should document the basis on which they act as a registered officer and retain records of their involvement. This ensures accountability and traceability in line with record-keeping obligations.

Requiring clients to submit AML self-assessments to an FIU and conducting onsite evaluations are not standard or required practices under AML frameworks.
