IIBA Agile Analysis Certification Sample Questions (Q98-Q103):

NEW QUESTION # 98

During a planning workshop, the team is discussing what outcomes will be addressed next? This team is operating at the:

- A. Initiative horizon
- B. Goals horizon
- C. Delivery horizon
- D. Strategy horizon

Answer: D

Explanation:

Discussing which high-level outcomes should be addressed next is an activity that takes place at the Strategy Horizon . While the Initiative Horizon deals with how to achieve those outcomes through specific solutions, the Strategy Horizon is focused on identifying the " Needs " and " Goals " of the entire organization. At this level, stakeholders and practitioners look at the big picture-market trends, competitive threats, and internal capabilities-to decide the direction the enterprise should take. Determining the next set of strategic outcomes involves a high level of analysis to determine what is most valuable to the business in the long term. This decision provides the necessary framework for the Initiative and Delivery horizons to align their work, ensuring that every project undertaken is a deliberate step toward the organization ' s future state.

NEW QUESTION # 99

When working in the Strategy Horizon and identifying the needs to be met, analysis related work helps an organization better allocate resources. This describes the business analysis principle of:

- A. Develop sound business case
- B. Understand what is doable
- C. Plan strategic initiatives and projects
- D. Analyze to determine what is valuable

Answer: D

Explanation:

The principle of Analyze to Determine What is Valuable is central to the Strategy Horizon, where the focus is on identifying and prioritizing the needs that will provide the most benefit to the organization. In an agile context, this principle ensures that resources are not spent on initiatives that do not align with the organizational goals or offer low returns. By performing analysis at the strategic level, practitioners help decision-makers evaluate various opportunities and select those that offer the highest value-to-effort ratio. This continuous evaluation process allows the organization to remain flexible, pivoting away from less valuable work and toward higher-impact initiatives as market conditions and internal capabilities evolve. This proactive resource allocation is a hallmark of an agile mindset, focusing on outcomes over simple task completion.

NEW QUESTION # 100

The team is discussing one of the six key terms used to discuss both business analysis and its relationship with common terminology. Specifically, they are describing improvements as being deliberate and achieved through business analysis. This team is discussing the:

- A. Solution
- B. Context
- C. Need
- D. Change

Answer: D

Explanation:

Change is the act of transformation in response to a need. Change works to improve the performance of an enterprise. These improvements are deliberate and controlled through business analysis activities.

NEW QUESTION # 101

During a project to improve efficiency at a customer service center, the product owner has established that a 15% improvement on a set of 5 measures is the target for a particular initiative. They meet this goal and move on to a new initiative. If they had not moved to a new goal, what agile analysis principle would they be ignoring?

- A. Recommend advancing initiative
- B. Avoid waste
- C. Determine if the need is satisfied
- D. Think as a customer

Answer: B

Explanation:

The agile principle of Avoid Waste dictates that teams should stop work on an initiative once the desired outcome has been achieved and additional effort would yield diminishing returns. In this scenario, the team met its specific target of 15% improvement. Continuing to work on that same initiative in hopes of achieving, for example, 16% or 17% might require significant resources that could be better used to address a different, higher-priority business need. By moving on to a new initiative, the team ensures they are maximizing the value delivered to the organization and not wasting time on "gold-plating" or over-engineering a solution that has already met its success criteria. This focus on efficiency and value-maximizing is a core component of the agile mindset, emphasizing that work not done is just as important as work completed.

NEW QUESTION # 102

The delivery team is:
prioritizing the backlog focusing on stories that deliver maximum value first maximizing the work not done.
These demonstrate application of the following agile business analysis principle:

- A. Stimulate collaboration and continuous improvement
- B. Avoid waste
- C. Customer collaboration over contract negotiation
- D. Think as a customer

Answer: A
