CompTIA PenTest+ Exam Sample Questions (Q50-Q55):

NEW QUESTION # 50
A penetration testing team needs to determine whether it is possible to disrupt the wireless communications for PCs deployed in the client's offices. Which of the following techniques should the penetration tester leverage?

- A. Port mirroring
- B. Channel scanning
- C. ARP poisoning
- D. Sidecar scanning

Answer: B

Explanation:
Channel Scanning:
Wireless communications can be disrupted by identifying and interfering with the channels used by Wi-Fi networks.
Channel scanning allows the tester to map all active Wi-Fi channels, identify the target network, and determine possible jamming or interference strategies.
Why Not Other Options?
A (Port mirroring): This applies to wired network traffic duplication for monitoring purposes and is unrelated to wireless disruption.
B (Sidecar scanning): Not a relevant technique in the context of wireless disruption.
C (ARP poisoning): This targets Ethernet/IP communication in a local network, not wireless communication at the radio frequency level.

NEW QUESTION # 51
If a network tester is unable to capture a Wi-Fi signal during testing, which of the following is the most likely reason?

- A. The client's network uses 6GHz and not 5GHz/2.4GHz.
- B. The tester misconfigured the capture device.
- C. The client provided the wrong SSID for the network.
- D. The tester is not using Aircrack-ng.

Answer: A

Explanation:
Comprehensive and Detailed Explanation:
The scenario indicates that the tester's capture device, when in monitor mode, cannot detect the target wireless network.
The most likely cause is frequency band incompatibility - if the client's wireless infrastructure uses Wi-Fi
6E (6GHz band), and the tester's adapter only supports 2.4GHz/5GHz, then the tester won't see any packets or SSIDs from that band.
Why not the others:
* B. Misconfiguration: While possible, the question specifies the network cannot be seen at all, pointing to hardware capability rather than misconfiguration.
* C. Wrong SSID: Even with a wrong SSID, the tester would still see the beacon frames if on the same frequency band.
* D. Not using Aircrack-ng: The tool used doesn't affect whether the capture device can see the network
- the adapter's frequency support does.
CompTIA PT0-003 Mapping:
* Domain 3.0: Attacks and Exploits
* Wireless network attacks and troubleshooting (frequency bands, hardware compatibility, Wi-Fi 6E considerations).

NEW QUESTION # 52
A red team gained access to the internal network of a client during an engagement and used the Responder tool to capture important data. Which of the following was captured by the testing team?

- A. User hashes sent over SMB
- B. Encrypted file transfers
- C. Multiple handshakes
- D. IP addresses

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 53
A penetration tester needs to confirm the version number of a client's web application server.
Which of the following techniques should the penetration tester use?

- A. Banner grabbing
- B. URL spidering
- C. Directory brute forcing
- D. SSL certificate inspection

Answer: A

Explanation:
Banner grabbing is a technique used to obtain information about a network service, including its version number, by connecting to the service and reading the response.

NEW QUESTION # 54
A tester needs to begin capturing WLAN credentials for cracking during an on-site engagement. Which of the following is the best command to capture handshakes?

- A. airodump-ng -c 6 --bssid <target_mac> <iface>
- B. tcpdump -n -s0 -w <pcapname> -i <iface>
- C. aireplay-ng -0 1000 -a <target_mac>
- D. airserv-ng -d <iface>

Answer: A

Explanation:
The command airodump-ng -c 6 --bssid <target_mac> <iface> is used to capture WPA/WPA2 4-way handshakes on a specific channel and BSSID. This handshake is necessary for offline password cracking using tools like Hashcat or John the Ripper.
From the CompTIA PenTest+ PT0-003 Official Study Guide (Chapter 7 - Wireless Attacks):
"Airodump-ng is used to capture handshakes between a client and access point. The attacker can then attempt to crack the captured handshake offline." Reference: Chapter 7, CompTIA PenTest+ PT0-003 Official Study Guide
