PMI Project Management Professional (2025 Version) Sample Questions (Q1032-Q1037):

NEW QUESTION # 1032

Which of the following diagrams is most useful in impact analysis:

- A. cause and effects diagrams
- B. arrow diagrams
- C. decision trees
- D. Pareto diagrams
- E. precedence diagrams

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 1033

A project manager is managing a complex research project with a high level of uncertainty. A request is made to implement a mechanism to measure the quality of the deliverables.

Using a hybrid approach, what techniques can be used to achieve this goal?

- A. Time-boxed iterations and standup review meetings.
- B. Scrum master reviews and the quality Kanban method.
- C. Paired work and the customer role method.
- D. Daily Scrum and product owner quality assessments.

Answer: A

Explanation:

Paired Work will improve quality, and the question is asking about a method to measure the quality.

NEW QUESTION # 1034

A large company has agreed on a business case for an environmental project. The project will cause some major changes in their operations, such as reduction in paper use, which will obviously affect all of the users.

What is the first thing the appointed project manager should do?

- A. Evaluate the impact to the users and create a plan to address it.
- B. Inform users about the new changes and ask for their collaboration.
- C. Ask all managers to collaborate implementing this change to users.
- D. Start implementing the change so that users will eventually get used to it.

Answer: A

Explanation:

The project manager should evaluate the impact to the users and create a plan to address it, as this is part of identifying stakeholders. Identifying stakeholders involves identifying the people, groups, or organizations that could impact or be impacted by the project, and analyzing their expectations, interests, and influence. By evaluating the impact to the users, the project manager can determine their needs, requirements, and potential issues, and create a plan to engage them effectively and manage their expectations. The other options are not the best ways to handle this situation, as they either ignore, assume, or delegate the stakeholder identification process.
