NEW QUESTION # 114

What is a logical data model used for?

- A. Defining a solution independent view of how a business perceives its information without applying any constraints.
- B. Abstracting a 'physical data model' to describe the physical organization of data and its relationships within a database.
- C. Abstracting a 'conceptual data model' to incorporate the rules of normalization to manage data integrity and relationships.
- D. Defining the logical rules that govern decisions in an organization and that define, constrain, or enable organizational operations.

Answer: C

Explanation:

A logical data model is used to abstract a 'conceptual data model' by incorporating normalization rules to manage data integrity and relationships. It serves as an abstraction layer that defines the relationships between different data elements, entities, and attributes, focusing on the business concepts and rules that govern the data. This model helps in organizing data to reduce redundancy and improve data integrity, ensuring that the data structure is optimized for both business understanding and database design.

References: The role and benefits of a logical data model in business analysis are discussed in resources like "What is a Logical Data Model? Definition and Examples" and "The logical data model explained" which detail how logical data models serve as blueprints for structuring enterprise knowledge and ensuring data integrity¹².

NEW QUESTION # 116

What tool classifies stakeholders according to responsibility?

- A. Stakeholder Map
- B. RACI Matrix
- C. Stakeholder List
- D. Personas

Answer: B

Explanation:

The RACI Matrix is a tool used in business analysis to classify stakeholders according to their responsibility in a project. RACI stands for Responsible, Accountable, Consulted, and Informed. Each letter represents a level of task responsibility. The RACI Matrix clarifies the roles and responsibilities of stakeholders in a project, ensuring that everyone knows what is expected of them. This helps in avoiding confusion and overlapping of duties among stakeholders.

The use of the RACI Matrix as a tool for classifying stakeholders according to responsibility is supported by various resources on stakeholder analysis and business analysis best practices 1 2 3 . While the BABOK Guide itself is a proprietary resource of the IIBA and not publicly accessible without membership, it is recognized in the business analysis community that the RACI Matrix is a standard tool for stakeholder classification 4 .
