Dynatrace Associate Certification Exam Sample Questions (Q77-Q82):

NEW QUESTION # 77

Where can I find the latest news on Dynatrace releases, blogs and innovation?

- A. wikipedia.org/wiki/Dynatrace
- B. dynatrace.com/news/blog
- C. github.com/Dynatrace
- D. youtube.com/hashtag/dynatrace
- E. dynatrace.com/news/engineering

Answer: B,E

Explanation:

The official and reliable sources for Dynatrace news, releases, and innovation updates are:

* Engineering news section , which shares technical updates, innovations, and product developments

* Dynatrace blog , which provides insights into new features, use cases, and platform updates While GitHub contains code repositories and tools, it is not considered an official source for release news and innovation updates. Other options like Wikipedia and YouTube are not official or authoritative sources for up-to-date product information.

NEW QUESTION # 78

What can conversion goals be based on? (Select all that apply)

- A. Number of Actions per Session
- B. Specific User Action
- C. Destination URL

- D. Number of Errors on Session end
- E. Session Duration

Answer: A,B,C,E

Explanation:

In Dynatrace Digital Experience Monitoring, conversion goals are used to measure key user behaviors and business outcomes. These goals can be defined based on several criteria related to user sessions and actions.

Supported bases for conversion goals include:

- * Specific User Action, such as clicking a button or completing a defined interaction
 - * Destination URL, where reaching a specific page indicates a successful conversion
 - * Number of Actions per Session, which reflects engagement level
 - * Session Duration, indicating how long users interact with the application
- The Number of Errors on Session end is not used as a basis for defining conversion goals. Instead, it is used more for session quality analysis rather than measuring successful conversions.

NEW QUESTION # 79

What features should be used to get FULL visibility into a database's performance, including code-level analysis, and metric data? (Select all that apply)

- A. OneAgent on the database host in Full-Stack mode
- B. Extensions for the specific database technology being monitored
- C. Real user monitoring on the application that makes database calls
- D. OneAgent on application servers making calls to the database
- E. OneAgent on the database host in Infrastructure only mode

Answer: A,B,D

Explanation:

To achieve full visibility into database performance, Dynatrace requires a combination of deep monitoring, code-level tracing, and database-specific metrics:

- * OneAgent in Full-Stack mode on the database host enables deep process-level monitoring and visibility into database internals where supported
 - * OneAgent on application servers provides code-level tracing, capturing database calls within distributed traces and linking them to application performance
 - * Database Extensions provide detailed technology-specific metrics, such as query performance, buffer usage, and connections
- Real User Monitoring focuses on end-user experience and does not directly provide database-level visibility. Infrastructure-only mode limits visibility to host-level metrics and does not provide deep code-level or database insights.
- Reference: Based on official Dynatrace University training materials covering database monitoring and OneAgent deployment strategies.

NEW QUESTION # 80

I want to import metrics on a platform that is not supported by the OneAgent, what options do I have? (Select all that apply)

- A. Create a Dynatrace App
- B. Use a Dynatrace Extension
- C. Install the Dynatrace ActiveGate
- D. OpenTelemetry

Answer: B,D

Explanation:

When a platform is not supported by OneAgent, Dynatrace provides alternative methods to ingest metrics:

- * OpenTelemetry allows ingestion of metrics using open standards, enabling integration with unsupported platforms by exporting telemetry data into Dynatrace
- * Dynatrace Extensions (especially Extensions v2) allow users to collect custom metrics from technologies that are not natively supported. Installing ActiveGate alone does not enable metric ingestion unless it is used in combination with extensions or APIs. Creating a Dynatrace App is unrelated to metric ingestion and is instead used for building custom UI or workflows within the platform.

Reference: Based on official Dynatrace University training materials on metric ingestion and extensions.

NEW QUESTION # 81

I want to use Dynatrace's global network of Synthetic Monitoring locations to monitor my application, which capability provides this?

- A. Public Synthetics
- B. Private Synthetics
- C. Dynatrace Apps
- D. Synthetic On-demand execution

Answer: A
