- A. Value stream management
- B. Value stream identification
- C. Mapping of the 'as-is' value stream
- D. Mapping a 'to-be' value stream

Answer: A

Explanation:

Value stream management is not one of the actual steps in value stream mapping, so option A is correct. In ITIL, value stream mapping typically includes identifying the value stream, mapping the current or "as-is" flow, analyzing bottlenecks and waste, and often designing an improved or "to-be" flow. These activities help an organization understand how work, information, and artifacts
