IIA Business Knowledge for Internal Auditing Sample Questions (Q83-Q88):

NEW QUESTION # 83

An organization's IT systems can only be accessed using the organization's virtual private network. However, organizational emails, videoconferencing, and file-sharing tools are cloud-based and can be accessed using multi-factor authentication via any device. Which of the following risks should the organization acknowledge?

- A. The risk that remote access controls are usually ineffective in cloud solutions
- B. The risk that virtual private networks are not secure
- C. The risk that employees may read organizational emails outside of business hours
- D. The risk that internal data can be leaked via unapproved applications

Answer: D

Explanation:

Cloud-based applications accessible outside the VPN perimeter increase the possibility of data leakage through unapproved or unsecured applications (shadow IT). Even with multi-factor authentication, risks remain around the use of personal devices and uncontrolled storage or sharing.

Option B is incorrect because VPNs are generally secure if configured correctly. Option C is misleading, as remote access controls can be effective in cloud solutions when properly designed. Option D (employees accessing emails after hours) is not a risk related to security but rather a work-life balance issue.

Thus, the key risk is potential leakage of organizational data via unapproved or uncontrolled applications (Option A).

NEW QUESTION # 84

Sales representatives for a manufacturing company are reimbursed for 100% of their cellular telephone bills. Cellular telephone costs vary significantly from representative to representative and from month to month, complicating the budgeting and forecasting processes. Management has requested that the internal auditors develop a method for controlling these costs. Which of the following would most appropriately be included in the scope of the consulting project?

- A. Benchmarking with other cellular telephone users
- B. Business process review of procurement and payables routines.
- C. Performance measurement and design of the budgeting and forecasting processes.
- D. Control self-assessment involving sales representatives.

Answer: B

Explanation:

A business process review (BPR) assesses the performance of administrative, financial, and other processes, such as those within the procurement and payables functions. BPR considers process effectiveness and efficiency, including the presence of appropriate controls, to mitigate business risk. It seeks to achieve improvements in such critical measures of performance as cost, quality, service, speed, and customer satisfaction. Because the objective is to control cellular phone costs, BPR is the appropriate tool.
