NEW QUESTION # 71

What is required for Prisma Cloud to successfully execute auto-remediation commands?

- A. Write access to the cloud platform
- B. Read access to the cloud platform
- C. Prisma Cloud requires no access to the cloud platform
- D. Access to the cloud platform only for Azure

Answer: A

Explanation:

For Prisma Cloud to execute auto-remediation commands, it requires write access to the cloud platform. This is because auto-remediation involves making changes to configurations or settings within the cloud environment to rectify security issues. Thus, the correct answer is B: Write access to the cloud platform.

NEW QUESTION # 72

What are the three states of the Container Runtime Model? (Choose three.)

- A. Learning
- B. Initiating
- C. Archived
- D. Running
- E. Active

Answer: A,C,E

Explanation:

The Container Runtime Model in Prisma Cloud typically includes states such as Learning, Active, and Archived. The Learning state is where Prisma Cloud observes container behaviors to understand normal operations and establish a baseline. During this phase, the system is not actively enforcing security policies but is learning the typical behaviors and patterns of container activity. The Active state is where the system actively enforces security policies based on the learned behaviors and detected anomalies. Containers that exhibit suspicious or malicious activity that deviates from the baseline may trigger alerts or actions based on configured policies. The Archived state refers to containers that are no longer active but whose data and activity logs are retained for historical analysis or compliance purposes.

NEW QUESTION # 73

What is a benefit of the Cloud Discovery feature?

- A. It helps engineers find all cloud-native services being used only on AWS.
- B. It does not require any specific permissions to be granted before use.
- C. It enables engineers to continuously monitor all accounts and report on the services that are unprotected.
- D. It offers coverage for serverless functions on AWS only.

Answer: C

Explanation:

The Cloud Discovery feature in Prisma Cloud allows engineers to monitor accounts continuously and report on cloud-native services that are unprotected across different cloud service providers. This feature requires specific permissions to access and assess the cloud environment's configuration and security posture. Thus, the correct answer is D: It enables engineers to continuously monitor all accounts and report on the services that are unprotected.

NEW QUESTION # 74

Which of the below actions would indicate - "The timestamp on the compliance dashboard?"

- A. indicates when the data was ingested
- B. indicates when the data was aggregated for the results displayed
- C. indicates the most recent data
- D. indicates the most recent alert generated

Answer: B

Explanation:

The timestamp on the compliance dashboard in a cloud security context typically reflects the point in time when data from various sources is collected, processed, and then consolidated to present the compliance status or results. This aggregation process involves compiling data from multiple scans, logs, and other compliance-related information to provide a comprehensive overview of the current compliance posture. Therefore, the timestamp usually indicates when this aggregation was completed, ensuring that users are viewing the most up-to-date and relevant compliance information based on the latest data compilation.
