Microsoft GitHub Foundations Sample Questions (Q49-Q54):

NEW QUESTION # 49

The difference between GitHub Desktop and github.com is that Desktop:

- A. Is only available on Windows operating systems.
- B. Offers a graphical user interface.
- C. Is a self-hosted version of GitHub.
- D. Enables integration with office suite applications.
- E. Is a standalone software application.

Answer: B

Explanation:

GitHub Desktop is a standalone application that provides a graphical user interface (GUI) for interacting with GitHub repositories, as opposed to the command-line or web-based interfaces available on github.com.

Graphical User Interface:

Option D is correct because GitHub Desktop offers a GUI, making it easier for users to manage repositories, perform commits, and handle other Git-related tasks without needing to use the command line.

NEW QUESTION # 50

Which GitHub tools or features is best to quickly modify a batch of files in a repository?

- A. Install and use GitHub Desktop.
- B. Create and use a new GitHub Codespace.
- C. Use github.dev from a web browser.
- D. Install and use the git CLI.
- E. Install and use GitHub Mobile.

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 51

What is a Git remote?

- A. a reference to a repository that is hosted in a separate location
- B. a branch in the repository where changes are pushed for collaboration
- C. a local copy of the repository stored on a user's machine
- D. a separate repository for testing before pushing changes to the main repository

Answer: A

Explanation:

A remote in Git is a common repository that all team members use to exchange their changes. In most cases, such a remote repository is stored on a code hosting service like GitHub or on an internal server.

About remote repositories

GitHub's collaborative approach to development depends on publishing commits from your local repository to GitHub for other people to view, fetch, and update.

Note:

A remote URL is Git's fancy way of saying "the place where your code is stored." That URL could be your repository on GitHub, or another user's fork, or even on a completely different server.

You can only push to two types of URL addresses:

An HTTPS URL like `https://github.com/user/repo.git`

An SSH URL, like `git@github.com:user/repo.git`

Git associates a remote URL with a name, and your default remote is usually called origin.

NEW QUESTION # 52

How can a user resume an existing Codespace that is bound to a repository? (Each correct answer presents a complete solution. Choose two.)

- A. Browse to the repository in GitHub.com, press the comma V key and select Resume this codespace.
- B. Open <https://github.com/codespaces> in the browser, select the repository, and then select the existing Codespace.
- C. Browse to the repository in GitHub.com and press the period "." key.
- D. Use the git CLI with the codespace parameter (e.g., "git codespace code -web").

Answer: A,B

NEW QUESTION # 53

What layouts are available for GitHub Projects? (Choose three.)

- A. Backlog
- B. Board
- C. Table
- D. Roadmap
- E. Kanban

Answer: B,C,E

Explanation:

GitHub Projects supports various layouts to help teams organize and visualize their work. The available layouts include:

B). Kanban: This is a visual task management tool where tasks are represented as cards and moved across columns that represent different stages of work.

C). Board: This layout is similar to Kanban but can be more flexible, allowing users to set up boards in various ways to suit their workflow needs.

D). Table: The Table layout allows you to view your tasks in a spreadsheet-like format, making it easy to manage and edit large amounts of data at once.

Roadmap and Backlog are not standard layouts provided by GitHub Projects. While these terms might be relevant in other project management contexts, GitHub Projects specifically offers Kanban, Board, and Table layouts.
