NEW QUESTION # 558

Which of the following can be used to authenticate and authorize computer access?

- A. What a person has/what a person knows/who a person is
- B. What a person has/what a person transfers/what a person is
- C. What a person presents/what a person inserts/what a person has
- D. Who a person knows/what a person has/what a person inserts

Answer: A

Explanation:

Authentication and authorization systems often use a combination of the following factors for secure access control:

* What a Person Has:

* Physical items like keycards, tokens, or security badges.

* What a Person Knows:

* Knowledge-based credentials such as passwords or PINs.

* Who a Person Is:

* Biometric identifiers like fingerprints, facial recognition, or iris scans.

This layered approach enhances security by requiring multiple forms of verification.

* B: "What a person transfers" is not a standard authentication factor.

* C: "Who a person knows" is unrelated to authentication.

* D: "What a person presents" is too vague and non-specific.

Why Other Options Are Incorrect: ASIS CPP References:

* Domain 4: Information Security Discusses authentication methods and multi-factor security frameworks.
