Microsoft Security, Compliance, and Identity Fundamentals Sample

Questions (Q121-Q126):

NEW QUESTION # 121
Select the answer that correctly completes the sentence.
□

Answer:

Explanation:
□
Explanation:
In Microsoft identity terminology, authentication is the step that proves who the user is when they attempt to sign in. Microsoft Learn defines it plainly: "Authentication is the process of proving the identity of a user, device, or service." By contrast, "Authorization is the process of determining what a user, device, or service can do." During sign-in to Microsoft Entra ID (formerly Azure AD), "the identity provider validates credentials and, upon successful authentication, issues tokens that applications use to grant access." Microsoft further explains the available methods: "Microsoft Entra ID supports multiple authentication methods, including passwords, multi-factor authentication, FIDO2 security keys, certificate-based authentication, and federated authentication." Auditing and administration are not the mechanisms that verify identity at sign-in. Auditing "records security- relevant events for investigation and compliance," while administration "refers to configuring and managing identities, access policies, and settings." Therefore, in the sentence "When users sign in, _____ verifies their credentials to prove their identity," the correct completion is authentication, because it is the control that validates the user's credentials and establishes identity before any authorization decisions are made.
