AACN Critical Care Nursing Exam Sample Questions (Q135-Q140):

NEW QUESTION # 135

A mother asks the nurse about Vitamin A supplementation. The best response is that giving Vitamin A starts when the infant reaches 6 months and the first dose is:

- A. 100,000 "IU"
- B. 10,000 "IU"
- C. 20,000 "IU"
- D. 200,000 "IU"

Answer: A

Explanation:

Explanation: An infant aging 6-11 months will be given Vitamin supplementation of 100, 000 IU and for Preschoolers ages 12-36 months 200,000 "IU" will be given.

NEW QUESTION # 136

Dustin, a 3-year-old boy, was admitted to the hospital with nephritic syndrome. The nurse should assign a roommate who is:

- A. a 3-year-old boy with pneumonia
- B. a 3-year-old boy with impetigo
- C. a 3-year-old girl with thalassemia
- D. a 3-year-old girl with conjunctivitis

Answer: C

Explanation:

Explanation: A 3-year-old boy with nephritic syndrome could be assigned a roommate like a 3-year-old girl with thalassemia. A child with nephrotic syndrome is at high risk for infection due to the lowered resistance. The child with thalassemia will be a best roommate because it is not communicable.

NEW QUESTION # 137

Hillary is a 6 year old who has meningitis. The nurse at the unit noticed that she assumes an opisthotonic position. The nurse should place her in :

- A. semi-fowler's position
- B. high fowler's position
- C. knee-chest position
- D. side-lying position

Answer: D

Explanation:

Explanation: In meningitis, side-lying position is for maximum safety and comfort because the child with meningitis has hyperextended neck and back.

NEW QUESTION # 138

The relationship between the family of a long-term patient and ICU healthcare providers has become strained. A nurse should first:

- A. Discuss the issue with the physician
- B. Rotate assignments among staff members

- C. Arrange a patient care conference with the family
- D. Suggest the family discuss their concerns with the nurse manager

Answer: C

Explanation:

When communication and relationships become strained, the most appropriate first action is to initiate a care conference. This collaborative approach provides a forum for the family and healthcare team to align goals, express concerns, and rebuild trust through structured, clear communication.

"Care conferences serve as a critical strategy to address and resolve family-staff conflict, particularly in long-term ICU stays where emotional fatigue and communication breakdowns are common." (Referenced from CCRN Pediatric - Professional Caring and Ethical Practice: Family-Centered Communication and Collaboration)

NEW QUESTION # 139

A 7 year-old child was rushed at the ER after a sudden onset of findings that include irritability, thick muffled voice, croaking on inspiration, fever, leaning forward while in a sitting position, protruding tongue, salivation and suprasternal retractions. What should the nurse do first?

- A. assess the throat
- B. have the sputum sent to laboratory for testing
- C. Have the child undergo an upper airway x-ray
- D. notify the doctor about the current status

Answer: D

Explanation:

Explanation: These findings suggest a medical emergency and may be due to epiglottitis. Any child with an acute onset of an inflammatory response in the mouth and throat should receive immediate medical attention in a hospital equipped with Intubation or a Tracheostomy in the event of further or complete obstruction.
