NEW QUESTION # 81

If the desire is to connect virtual network functions together to accommodate different types of network service connectivity, what must be deployed?

- A. Switching
- B. Bridging
- C. Linking
- D. Daisy Chaining
- E. Service Chaining

Answer: E

Explanation:

In modern network architectures, particularly those using NFV (Network Function Virtualization), Service Chaining is used to direct traffic through a sequence of virtualized network functions (VNFs)-such as firewalls, load balancers, NAT devices, etc.-based on service requirements.

Service chaining allows:

- * Dynamic or policy-based redirection of traffic through VNFs
- * Simplified orchestration of network services
- * Scalability and flexibility across multi-tenant or virtualized environments CCDE v3.1 emphasizes service chaining as a key enabler in cloud-native and virtualized architectures, ensuring services are efficiently composed based on application or security needs.

Why other options are incorrect:

- * A and E (Bridging/Switching): Refer to traditional Layer 2 forwarding and do not provide VNF sequencing logic.

* C and D: "Linking" and "Daisy chaining" are not standard or scalable methods in NFV environments.

NEW QUESTION # 82

Company A has a hub-and spoke topology over an SP-managed infrastructure. To measure traffic performance metrics, IP SLA senders on all spoke CE routers and an IP SLA responder on the hub CE router.

What must they monitor to have visibility on the potential performance impact due to the constantly increasing number of spoke sites?

- A. interface buffers on the hub and spoke routers
- B. memory usage on the hub router
- C. CPU usage on the hub router
