IBFCSM Certified Emergency and Disaster Professional Sample Questions (Q25-Q30):

NEW QUESTION # 25

What is the purpose of validating capabilities using drills and exercises?

- A. Collecting threat and risk data
- B. Identifying planning gaps
- C. Preventing unwanted outcomes

Answer: B

Explanation:

The primary purpose of validating capabilities through drills and exercises, as defined by the Homeland Security Exercise and Evaluation Program (HSEEP), is identifying planning gaps and areas for improvement.

Exercises provide a "no-fault" environment to test whether the policies, procedures, and resources described in an Emergency Operations Plan (EOP) actually work in a simulated real-world scenario. Without validation, a plan is merely a set of untested assumptions.

Validation through exercises serves several critical functions:

- * Clarifying Roles: Ensuring every agency knows its specific responsibilities under the Incident Command System (ICS).
- * Resource Verification: Confirming that the equipment and personnel "typed" in the plan are actually available and functional.
- * Revealing Gaps: Identifying if communications are not interoperable, if triage protocols are too slow, or if the "span of control" is too wide.

While Option B (Preventing unwanted outcomes) is a long-term goal of the entire preparedness program, an exercise itself cannot "prevent" a real-world disaster; it can only prepare you for it. Option C (Collecting threat data) is part of the THIRA/HVA process that happens before the exercise is designed. According to the CEDP curriculum, the "output" of an exercise is the After-Action Report (AAR) and the Improvement Plan (IP). These documents formally list the identified gaps and assign tasks to fix them. By systematically identifying and closing these planning gaps, an organization builds a higher level of "Realized Capability," ensuring that when a real disaster occurs, the response is characterized by competence and coordination rather than confusion and failure.

NEW QUESTION # 26

What preparedness concept would fail outside of the content parameters specifically addressed by the National Response Framework?

- A. Coalition planning
- B. Readiness to act
- C. Tiered response

Answer: C

Explanation:

The Tiered Response is the fundamental organizational concept of the National Response Framework (NRF). It is based on the principle that all incidents begin and end locally. When local resources are overwhelmed, they request assistance from the state, and when state resources are overwhelmed, they request federal assistance.

If an emergency response attempted to operate outside of the content parameters of the NRF, the Tiered Response structure would fail, leading to jurisdictional chaos and the misallocation of life-saving resources.

Without the standardized "rules of engagement" provided by the NRF, federal agencies might attempt to take control of a local scene without invitation (violating the principle of state sovereignty), or local agencies might wait for federal help that hasn't been officially requested. The NRF provides the legal and operational "bridge" that allows these different layers of government to stack on top of each other seamlessly.

For a CEDP candidate, understanding the Tiered Response is essential for managing expectations and resource timelines. You cannot jump directly to "Federal" support without following the tiered protocols. Concepts like

"Readiness to act" (Option C) and "Coalition planning" (Option A) are important, but they can exist independently of the NRF's specific national structure. However, the integrated Tiered Response is unique to the NRF/NIMS doctrine. If the NRF parameters are ignored, the "Bottom-Up" approach—which ensures that the people closest to the incident maintain command—is replaced by an inefficient "Top-Down" approach that historically fails during complex, large-scale disasters.

NEW QUESTION # 27

What formally documents NIMS objectives?

- A. Incident action plans
- B. All hazards assessment document
- C. Emergency operations plan

Answer: A

Explanation:

Under the National Incident Management System (NIMS) and the Incident Command System (ICS), the Incident Action Plan (IAP) is the document that formally records the incident-specific objectives for a given operational period. NIMS defines an objective as a statement of what is to be accomplished during an incident. These objectives must be SMART: Specific, Measurable, Actionable, Realistic, and Time-bound.

The IAP ensures that all responding personnel, regardless of their parent agency, are working toward a unified set of goals. The IAP is typically developed during the "Planning P" cycle. The Incident Commander (or Unified Command) sets the overall Strategic Objectives, which are then translated into Tactical Objectives and Work Assignments within the IAP. While an Emergency Operations Plan (EOP) (Option A) provides the general framework and policies for a community's response, it is a static document. The IAP is a dynamic document that is updated for every operational period (e.g., every 12 or 24 hours), reflecting the changing "ground truth" of the disaster.

In the CEDP curriculum, the IAP is seen as the primary tool for Management by Objectives. The IAP includes not just the objectives, but also the organization chart (ICS 203), the medical plan (ICS 206), and the safety message (ICS 208). By formally documenting these objectives in the IAP, the command structure ensures Accountability and Unity of Effort. Every responder who checks into an incident receives an IAP (or a briefing based on it), ensuring they understand exactly what is expected of them and how their tasks contribute to the overall stabilization of the incident and the safety of the public.

NEW QUESTION # 28

What alternative best describes the mission of the Department of Homeland Security (DHS)?

- A. A large agency gathers, assesses, and shares security information
- B. A focused single enterprise with a shared vision among many entities
- C. A multi-faceted operation that operates in a decentralized fashion

Answer: B

Explanation:

The Department of Homeland Security (DHS) is best described as a focused single enterprise with a shared vision among many entities. Since its creation following the 9/11 attacks, the mission of DHS has been to unify the previously fragmented domestic security efforts into a single "Homeland Security Enterprise." This enterprise includes not only the federal departments (FEMA, TSA, CBP, Coast Guard, etc.) but also state, local, tribal, and territorial partners, as well as the private sector and the American public. The "shared vision" is defined in the Quadrennial Homeland Security Review (QHSR), which identifies five core missions:

- * Preventing terrorism and enhancing security.
- * Securing and managing our borders.
- * Enforcing and administering our immigration laws.
- * Safeguarding and securing cyberspace.
- * Ensuring resilience to disasters.

Option B is incorrect because, while DHS is multi-faceted, its goal is to move away from "decentralized" silos toward an integrated "Unity of Effort." Option C describes a function (Information Sharing), but it does not capture the "Enterprise" mission. For the CEDP professional, understanding DHS as an enterprise is critical for grant funding and resource coordination. It means that a local police department's anti-terrorism efforts are part of the same "vision" as the Coast Guard's port security and CISA's cybersecurity initiatives. This single-enterprise approach ensures that the nation's diverse security components are working toward the same strategic goals, reducing overlaps and gaps in the defense of the homeland.

NEW QUESTION # 29

Why should planners consider risk-related issues during EOP development?

- A. Evaluate the need to implement proper control techniques to reduce losses
