NEW QUESTION # 173

Refer to the exhibit.

What is the purpose of configuring FortiAnalyzer with the settings displayed in the image?

- A. To increase reliability
- B. To improve security
- C. To expand bandwidth
- D. To maximize resiliency

Answer: B

Explanation:

The settings displayed in the image show the creation of a VLAN interface on FortiAnalyzer. The VLAN ID is set to 100, and it is associated with port 5.

The purpose of configuring a VLAN interface like this is generally: To improve security.

By creating a VLAN, traffic can be segmented into isolated networks, which helps limit access and enhances security by reducing the broadcast domain and keeping different types of traffic (e.g., management, user, and data traffic) separate.

NEW QUESTION # 175

Which process caches logs on FortiGate when FortiAnalyzer is not readable?

- A. oftpd
- B. sqlplugind
- C. logfiled
- D. miglogd

Answer: D

Explanation:

The process logfiled in FortiGate units with an SSD disk is responsible for buffering logs when FortiAnalyzer is unreachable. If the connection to FortiAnalyzer is lost and the memory log buffer is full, logfiled allows logs to be buffered on disk. These logs are then sent to FortiAnalyzer once the connection is restored. This reliable logging mechanism ensures that logs are not lost during periods when FortiAnalyzer is not reachable, thereby maintaining log integrity and continuity.
