NEW QUESTION # 92

Northern Trail Outfitters (NTO) is looking to build an app for its logistics team where users will be able to submit inventory refill requests. The current manual process involves filling out a long form containing many fields. NTO is planning to replace the current process with Flows. Users frequently change field values as they are filling out the form. What should NTO keep in mind about letting users go backward in the Flow to make updates to field values?

- A. Allow Navigation' needs to be set to TRUE on the Flow.
- B. Letting users navigate from the later screen to the previous screen could result in duplicates.
- C. Only users with "Navigate Flows" permission can navigate to previous screens.
- D. Once the user navigates to previous screen, all field values on the current screen will be lost and will need to be repopulated.

Answer: A

Explanation:

To enable users to navigate backward in a Flow and update field values, the 'Allow Navigation' setting must be enabled in the Flow's configuration. This allows users to move between screens without losing the information they've entered, improving the user experience when filling out forms or completing processes that require multiple steps.
