Palo Alto Networks Cloud Security Professional Sample Questions (Q106-Q111):

NEW QUESTION # 106
Which method should be used to authenticate to Prisma Cloud Enterprise programmatically?

- A. basic authentication
- B. SAML
- C. single sign-on
- D. access key

Answer: D

Explanation:
To authenticate to Prisma Cloud Enterprise programmatically, the use of an access key is the most suitable method among the given options. Access keys, typically consisting of an Access Key ID and Secret Access Key, are used for programmatic calls to the Prisma Cloud API. This method enables secure, authenticated API requests to Prisma Cloud services without requiring manual user intervention, which is essential for automation and integration with CI/CD pipelines.
Reference to the use of access keys for programmatic access can often be found in the API documentation of cloud security platforms like Prisma Cloud. While specific documentation from Prisma Cloud is not directly quoted here, the general practice across cloud services (AWS, Azure, GCP) supports the use of access keys for API authentication, making it a verified approach for Prisma Cloud as well.

NEW QUESTION # 109
A customer wants to harden its environment from misconfiguration.
Prisma Cloud Compute Compliance enforcement for hosts covers which three options? (Choose three.)

- A. Host cloud provider tags
- B. Docker daemon configuration files
- C. Docker daemon configuration
- D. Hosts without Defender agents
- E. Host configuration

Answer: B,C,E

Explanation:
Prisma Cloud Compute Compliance enforcement for hosts covers several aspects to ensure a secure and compliant host environment, particularly within containerized environments. These include:
* Docker daemon configuration files: Ensuring that Docker daemon configuration files are set up according to best security practices is crucial. These files contain various settings that control the behavior of the Docker daemon, and misconfigurations can lead to security vulnerabilities.
* Docker daemon configuration: Beyond just the configuration files, the overall configuration of the Docker daemon itself is critical. This encompasses runtime settings and command-line options that determine how Docker containers are executed and managed on the host.
* Host configuration: The security of the underlying host on which Docker and other container runtimes are installed is paramount. This includes the configuration of the host's operating system, network settings, file permissions, and other system-level settings that can impact the security of the containerized applications running on top.
By focusing on these areas, Prisma Cloud ensures that not just the containers but also the environment they run in is secure, adhering to compliance standards and best practices to mitigate risks associated with containerized deployments.

NEW QUESTION # 110
What is required for Prisma Cloud to successfully execute auto-remediation commands?

- A. Access to the cloud platform only for Azure
- B. Write access to the cloud platform
- C. Prisma Cloud requires no access to the cloud platform
- D. Read access to the cloud platform

Answer: B

Explanation:
For Prisma Cloud to execute auto-remediation commands, it requires write access to the cloud platform. This is because auto-remediation involves making changes to configurations or settings within the cloud environment to rectify security issues. Thus, the correct answer is B: Write access to the cloud platform.
