NEW QUESTION # 52

Response:

- A. Open registration allowing user self-enrollment
- B. Temporary guest accounts with limited access
- C. Individual user registration via email invitations
- D. Bulk user registration through automated scripts

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 53

A customer needs to implement device posture checks for their remote endpoints while accessing the protected server. They also want the TCP traffic between the remote endpoints and the protected servers to be processed by FortiGate.

In this scenario, which three setups will achieve the above requirements? (Choose three.)

- A. Configure private access policies on FortiSASE with ZTNA.
- B. Configure FortiGate as a zero trust network access (ZTNA) access proxy.
- C. Configure ZTNA tags on FortiGate.
- D. Sync ZTNA tags from FortiSASE to FortiGate.
- E. Configure ZTNA servers and ZTNA policies on FortiGate.

Answer: B,C,E

Explanation:

To meet the requirements of implementing device posture checks for remote endpoints and ensuring that TCP traffic between the endpoints and protected servers is processed by FortiGate, the following three setups are necessary:

Configure ZTNA tags on FortiGate (Option A):

ZTNA (Zero Trust Network Access) tags are used to define access control policies based on the security posture of devices. By configuring ZTNA tags on FortiGate, administrators can enforce granular access controls, ensuring that only compliant devices can access protected resources.

Configure FortiGate as a zero trust network access (ZTNA) access proxy (Option B):

FortiGate can act as a ZTNA access proxy, which allows it to mediate and secure connections between remote endpoints and protected servers. This setup ensures that all TCP traffic passes through FortiGate, enabling inspection and enforcement of security policies.

Configure ZTNA servers and ZTNA policies on FortiGate (Option C):

To enable ZTNA functionality, administrators must define ZTNA servers (the protected resources) and create ZTNA policies on FortiGate. These policies determine how traffic is routed, inspected, and controlled based on device posture and user identity.
