EXIN Certified Data Centre Professional (CDCP) Sample Questions (Q63-Q68):

NEW QUESTION # 63

A UPS has an internal battery tester, do you still need to separately test the batteries at block level?

- A. No, as mentioned the battery tester is already built-in the UPS.
- B. Yes, the UPS will only test the batteries at string level which only gives an indication on the overall status of the battery string. Measurements at block level will provide more detailed information on the status and remaining lifetime of the batteries itself.
- C. No, the UPS will automatically generate and alarm when de battery voltage is too low to operate.
- D. Testing batteries using the built-in battery tester or resting the batteries at block level does not increase the battery lifetime, therefore it is not recommended.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Block-level testing identifies weak or failing individual batteries that may not show up in string-level tests, enhancing overall system reliability.

NEW QUESTION # 64

Which type of Fire Detection Device is recommended for protecting a Data Center?

- A. None of the above
- B. Smoke detector
- C. Flame detector
- D. Heat detector

Answer: B

Explanation:

According to the CDCP® Preparation Guide, smoke detectors are the most common type of fire detection devices used in data centers, as they can detect a fire in its early stages and provide early warning to the occupants and authorities. Smoke detectors can be either spot-type or air-aspirating, depending on the design and goals of the data center. Spot-type detectors are inexpensive and simple, but may cause activation delay and false alarms. Air-aspirating detectors are more sensitive and reliable, but may require more maintenance and installation costs. Both types of detectors should be installed in accordance with the relevant standards and codes, such as NFPA 72 and EN 54.

NEW QUESTION # 65

Which Class of Fires involves ordinary combustible materials such as paper, wood and cloth?

- A. Class K
- B. Class A
- C. Class B
- D. Class D

Answer: B

Explanation:

According to the CDCP® Preparation Guide, Class A fires involve ordinary combustible materials such as paper, wood and cloth. These materials leave behind ash or embers when they burn. Class A fires can be extinguished by water or other cooling agents that reduce the temperature of the fuel below its ignition point.

NEW QUESTION # 66

is the degree to which a system or component is operational and accessibility when required for use.

- A. Availability
- B. Scalability
- C. Agility
- D. Reliability

Answer: A

Explanation:

Availability is the degree to which a system, product or component is operational and accessible when required for use. It is one of the attributes of reliability, which is the ability of a system or component to perform its required functions under stated conditions for a specified period of time. Availability can be calculated as the ratio of the expected value of the uptime (the time when the system is functional) to the total time (uptime plus downtime) of a system or component. Availability can also be influenced by factors such as maintainability, fault tolerance, redundancy, diagnostics, and logistics.

NEW QUESTION # 67

The termination of the ability of a product to perform its required function can be defined as.

- A. Failure
- B. Obstacle
- C. Hindrance
- D. Termination

Answer: A

Explanation:

According to the EPI Data Centre Professional (CDCP) Preparation Guide, failure is defined as "the termination of the ability of a product to perform its required function" (page 9). Failure can occur due to various reasons, such as wear and tear, design flaws, human errors, environmental factors, or external events.

Failure can affect the availability, reliability, and performance of a product, system, or service.
