A mobile application project is halfway through development. The team reaches a stabilized velocity after 8 iterations. The sprint duration is two weeks and requirements assigned by the product owner are not changing frequently.

What is the estimated time remaining for the project?

- A. Two months
- B. Eight months
- C. Four months
- D. Six months

Answer: C

Explanation:

Understand the current progress:
The project is halfway through development.
The team has reached a stable velocity after 8 iterations.
Each sprint duration is two weeks.
Determine the remaining number of iterations:
Since the project is halfway completed, an equal amount of work remains.
If 8 iterations have been completed, 8 more iterations are required to complete the project.
Calculate the remaining time:
Each iteration (sprint) lasts 2 weeks.
 $8 \text{ iterations} \times 2 \text{ weeks per iteration} = 16 \text{ weeks}$.
 $16 \text{ weeks} = 4 \text{ months}$.
