HP Aruba Campus Access Associate Exam Sample Questions (Q50-Q55):

NEW QUESTION # 50

A hospital uses a lot of mobile equipment for the diagnosis and documentation of patient data. What is the ideal access switch for this large hospital with distribution racks of over 400 ports in a single VSF stack?

- A. OCX 6200
- B. CX 6300
- C. OCX 6400
- D. OCX 6100

Answer: B

Explanation:

The ideal access switch for a large hospital with distribution racks of over 400 ports in a single VSF stack is the CX 6300. This switch provides the following benefits:

The CX 6300 supports up to 48 ports per switch and up to 10 switches per VSF stack, allowing for a total of 480 ports in a single stack. This meets the requirement of having over 400 ports in a single VSF stack.

The CX 6300 supports high-performance switching with up to 960 Gbps of switching capacity and up to 714 Mpps of forwarding rate. This meets the requirement of having high throughput and low latency for mobile equipment and patient data.

The CX 6300 supports advanced features such as dynamic segmentation, policy-based routing, and role-based access control.

These features enhance the security and flexibility of the network by applying different policies and roles to different types of devices and users.

The CX 6300 supports Aruba NetEdit, a network configuration and orchestration tool that simplifies the management and automation of the network. This reduces the complexity and human errors involved in network configuration and maintenance.

The other options are not ideal because:

OCX 6400: This switch is designed for data center applications and does not support VSF stacking. It also does not support dynamic segmentation or policy-based routing, which are useful for network security and flexibility.

OCX 6200: This switch is designed for small to medium-sized businesses and does not support VSF stacking. It also has lower switching capacity and forwarding rate than the CX 6300, which may affect the performance of the network.

OCX 6100: This switch is designed for edge applications and does not support VSF stacking. It also has lower switching capacity and forwarding rate than the CX 6300, which may affect the performance of the network.

NEW QUESTION # 51

What is the recommended VSF topology? (Select two.)

- A. Full mesh
- B. Star
- C. Ring
- D. Daisy chain plus MAD
- E. Full mesh plus MAD

Answer: C,D

Explanation:

Only: Daisy chain plus MAD and ring are the recommended VSF topologies for Aruba switches. They provide high availability and redundancy for the VSF stack. MAD (Multiple Active Detection) is a mechanism to detect and resolve split-brain scenarios in a VSF stack. What are two advantages of a UXI? (Select two.)

- A. A UXI measures the Wi-Fi coverage of all APs in the given location.
- B. A UXI can check different applications, such as HTTP VOIP or Office 365.
- C. A UXI helps to calculate the best WiFi channels in a remote location

- D. A UXI behaves like a client/user
- E. A UXI can be used without any internet connection

Answer: B,D

NEW QUESTION # 53

Which statement about manual switch provisioning with Aruba Central is correct?

- A. Manual provisioning does not require DHCP and requires DNS
- B. Manual provisioning requires DHCP and requires DNS
- C. Manual provisioning requires DHCP and does not require DNS
- D. Manual provisioning does not require DHCP and does not require DNS

Answer: C

Explanation:

Manual switch provisioning in Aruba Central can be done without relying on DNS services, but it does require DHCP to assign IP addresses to the switches. DHCP is essential for the switches to obtain an IP address, which is necessary for them to communicate within the network and with Aruba Central for management and configuration purposes. DNS, on the other hand, is not strictly required for manual provisioning as direct IP addresses or other methods can be used to connect to Aruba Central or other management interfaces.

NEW QUESTION # 54

Based on the given topology, what is the requirement on an Aruba switch to enable LLDP messages to be received by Switch 1 port 1/1/24, when Router 1 is enabled with LLDP?

- A. int 1/1/24, no cdp
- B. global configuration lldp enable
- C. int 1/1/24, lldp receive
- D. LLDP is enabled by default

Answer: C

Explanation:

Explanation

LLDP Link Layer Discovery Protocol. LLDP is a vendor-neutral link layer protocol used by network devices for advertising their identity, capabilities, and neighbors on a local area network. is enabled by default on Aruba switches, but it can be disabled on a per-port basis using the no lldp command. To enable LLDP messages to be received by Switch 1 port 1/1/24, you need to enter the interface configuration mode for that port and use the lldp receive command.
