Microsoft GitHub Actions Sample Questions (Q59-Q64):

NEW QUESTION # 59
Disabling a workflow allows you to stop a workflow from being triggered without having to delete the file from the repo. In which scenarios would temporarily disabling a workflow be most useful? (Choose two.)

- A. A workflow needs to be changed from running on a schedule to a manual trigger
- B. A workflow is configured to run on self-hosted runners
- C. A runner needs to have diagnostic logging enabled.
- D. A workflow sends requests to a service that is down.
- E. A workflow error produces too many, or wrong, requests, impacting external services negatively.

Answer: D,E

Explanation:
If a workflow depends on an external service that is down, disabling the workflow temporarily will prevent it from running and sending requests to the service, thus avoiding failed requests or unnecessary retries.
If a workflow is causing a negative impact on external services by generating too many requests or incorrect data due to a bug, temporarily disabling the workflow will stop this behavior while the issue is fixed.

NEW QUESTION # 60
You are reaching your organization's storage limit for GitHub artifacts and packages. What should you do to prevent the storage limit from being reached? (Each correct answer presents a complete solution. Choose two.)

Answer:

Explanation:
B.C
Explanation:
[E] To bypass GitHub's limit of 100 MB you can use Git Large File Storage (Git LFS). It stores references to your file in the repo by creating a pointer file. However, the actual file is going to be stored at a different location.
[C] Configuring the retention period for GitHub Actions artifacts and logs in your organization You can configure the retention period for GitHub Actions artifacts and logs in your organization.
By default, the artifacts and log files generated by workflows are retained for 90 days before they are automatically deleted. You can adjust the retention period, depending on the type of repository:
For public repositories: you can change this retention period to anywhere between 1 day or 90 days.
For private repositories: you can change this retention period to anywhere between 1 day or 400 days.
When you customize the retention period, it only applies to new artifacts and log files, and does not retroactively apply to existing objects. For managed repositories and organizations, the maximum retention period cannot exceed the limit set by the managing organization or enterprise.

NEW QUESTION # 61
Your organization needs to simplify reusing and maintaining automation in your GitHub Enterprise Cloud. Which components can be directly reused across all repositories in an organization? (Choose three.)

- A. self-hosted runners
- B. workflow templates
- C. custom Docker actions stored in GitHub Container Registry
- D. encrypted secrets
- E. actions stored in an organizational partition in the GitHub Marketplace
- F. actions stored m private repositories in the organization

Answer: B,D,F

Explanation:
Actions stored in private repositories within the organization can be reused across all repositories by referencing them in workflows. This ensures a centralized way of maintaining custom actions.
Encrypted secrets can be accessed across repositories in the same organization, making it easy to store sensitive data (like API keys or tokens) securely while allowing multiple workflows to access them.
Workflow templates allow you to create reusable templates for workflows that can be shared across repositories within the organization. This makes it easier to standardize processes and automate them across multiple projects.

NEW QUESTION # 62
What can be used to set a failed status of an action from its code?

- A. a non-zero exit code
- B. output variable
- C. JavaScript dist/ folder
- D. Dockerfile CMD
- E. composite run step
- F. @actions/github toolkit

Answer: A

Explanation:

A non-zero exit code is used to set the status of an action to "failed" in GitHub Actions. When the action's script or code exits with a non-zero status, it indicates failure, and GitHub will mark the action as failed.

NEW QUESTION # 63
When should you use the GITHUB_TOKEN in a workflow?

- A. when you want to connect to the runner via SSH
- B. when you want to call an action from the marketplace
- C. when you want to access repository-level secrets
- D. when you want to make authenticated calls to the GitHub API

Answer: D

Explanation:
Use GITHUB_TOKEN for authentication in workflows
At the start of each workflow job, GitHub automatically creates a unique GITHUB_TOKEN secret to use in your workflow. You can use the GITHUB_TOKEN to authenticate in the workflow job.
