NEW QUESTION # 125

What should be avoided within the loop when working web flows?

- A. Assignment new values to variables.
- B. Displaying data to the user
- C. Executing actions like creating or updating records
- D. Nesting another loop.

Answer: D

Explanation:

When working with loops in Salesforce flows, it's recommended to avoid nesting another loop within a loop (D). Nested loops can significantly increase the complexity and processing time of the flow, potentially leading to performance issues. Instead, it's advisable to design the flow in a way that minimizes the need for nested loops, possibly by restructuring the flow's logic or using collections to handle bulk operations more efficiently.
