NEW QUESTION # 18

Which two statements describe a zero trust network access (ZTNA) private access use case? (Choose two.)

- A. All FortiSASE user-based deployments are supported.
- B. All TCP-based applications are supported.
- C. The security posture of the device is secure.
- D. Data center redundancy is offered.

Answer: B,C

Explanation:

Zero Trust Network Access (ZTNA) private access use cases focus on providing secure and controlled access to private applications without exposing them to the public internet. The following two statements accurately describe ZTNA private access use cases:

* The security posture of the device is secure (Option A): ZTNA enforces strict access controls based on the principle of least privilege. Before granting access to private applications, ZTNA evaluates the security posture of the device (e.g., whether it is patched, compliant, and free of malware). Only devices that meet the required security standards are granted access, ensuring that the device is secure before allowing private access.

* All TCP-based applications are supported (Option C): ZTNA supports all TCP-based applications, enabling secure access to a wide range of private applications, including legacy systems and custom-built applications. This flexibility makes ZTNA suitable for organizations with diverse application environments.

Here's why the other options are incorrect:

* B. All FortiSASE user-based deployments are supported: While FortiSASE supports various deployment scenarios, not all user-based deployments are automatically compatible with ZTNA.

Specific configurations and requirements must be met to enable ZTNA functionality.

* D. Data center redundancy is offered: Data center redundancy is unrelated to ZTNA private access use cases. Redundancy typically pertains to infrastructure design and failover mechanisms, not access control methodologies like ZTNA.
