NEW QUESTION # 43
Your organization is part of a highly regulated industry with a very high turnover. In order to recycle licenses for new employees and comply with data retention regulations, it has been determined that certain Google Workspace data should be stored in a separate backup environment.
How should you store data for this situation?

- A. Use a third-party tool to configure secure backup of Google Workspace data.
- B. Write a script and use Google Workspace APIs to access and download user data.
- C. Train users to use Google Takeout and store their archives locally.
- D. Use routing rules to dual-deliver mail to an on-premises SMTP server and Google Workspace.

Answer: A

Explanation:
Evaluate Third-Party Backup Solutions: Identify third-party tools that offer secure backup solutions for Google Workspace. Examples include Backupify, Spanning Backup, and Afi.ai.
Choose a Suitable Tool: Based on your organization's needs and compliance requirements, select a tool that offers robust data retention, secure storage, and easy recovery options.
Set Up the Backup Solution:
Create an Account: Sign up for the chosen third-party backup service.
Configure Backup Settings: Link your Google Workspace account and configure the backup settings to meet your data retention policies.
Schedule Backups: Set up regular backup schedules to ensure data is continuously backed up.
Test Backups and Recovery: Perform initial backups and test the recovery process to ensure data can be retrieved efficiently when needed.
Monitor and Maintain: Regularly monitor the backup status and maintain the system to comply with your organization's data retention regulations.
