POL can be sold independently in all office scenarios.

- A. False
- B. True

Answer: A

Explanation:

POL (Passive Optical LAN) is a solution designed for enterprise campus environments, leveraging PON technology to provide converged voice, data, and video services. While POL is highly versatile and can be deployed in various scenarios such as education, healthcare, hospitality, and office environments, it cannot always be sold independently in all office scenarios. The deployment of POL depends on factors such as the existing infrastructure, customer requirements, and the scale of the network. In some cases, additional components like Wi-Fi access points, routers, or switches may be required to complement the POL solution. Therefore, POL is typically sold as part of an integrated solution tailored to the customer's specific needs.
