CIDQ IDPX Exam Syllabus Topics:

Topic	Details
Topic 1	Integration of Furniture, Fixtures, & Equipment: This section of the exam measures the skills of a FF&E Specialist and focuses on selecting and integrating furniture and equipment. It includes understanding product types, code compliance, maintenance requirements, procurement, installation processes, and cost estimation methods.
Topic 2	Project Process, Roles, and Coordination: This section of the exam measures the skills of a Project Design Manager and focuses on team roles, stakeholder engagement, budgeting, project timelines, and collaboration with allied professionals. It also includes managing deliverables, specifications, phased construction, and conducting post-occupancy evaluations.
Topic 3	Professional Business Practices: This section of the exam measures skills of an Interior Design Consultant and addresses business structures, scope of practice, proposals, contracts, and basic project accounting. It prepares candidates to understand legal obligations, manage finances, and structure project proposals professionally.
Topic 4	Project Assessment and Sustainability: This section of the exam measures skills of an Interior Design Consultant and covers understanding and evaluating square footage standards, environmental and wellness criteria, existing site conditions, and key project drivers such as client goals, culture, and budget.
Topic 5	Code Requirements, Laws, Standards, and Regulations: This section of the exam measures the skills of a Regulatory Compliance Specialist and covers environmental regulations, accessibility standards, building codes, and zoning laws. It also addresses understanding jurisdictional permit processes and legal implications for design compliance.

CIDQ Interior Design Professional Exam Sample Questions (Q14-Q19):

NEW QUESTION # 14

Permit application requirements are developed by the

- A. general contractor for the project
- B. International Code Council (ICC)
- C. National Fire Protection Association (NFPA)
- D. local jurisdiction of the project

Answer: D

Explanation:

Permit application requirements are set by the local jurisdiction (e.g., city building department), the authority having jurisdiction (AHJ), which adopts and amends codes like the IBC to suit local needs. The ICC (B) develops model codes (e.g., IBC), not local rules. The contractor (C) complies, not creates, requirements.

NFPA (D) provides fire standards, not permitting processes. Local jurisdiction (A) tailors and enforces permit rules.

Verified Answer from Official Source: A - local jurisdiction of the project

"Permit application requirements are established by the local jurisdiction, adapting model codes to specific regional standards."

(NCIDQ IDPX Study Guide, Section 1: Codes and Standards) Explanation from Official Source: The NCIDQ emphasizes the AHJ's role in permitting, ensuring designers meet localized code interpretations for approval.

Objectives:

* Understand permitting processes (IDPX Objective 1.7).

NEW QUESTION # 15

Information regarding product substitutions is found in the

- A. material specifications

- B. bid (tender) forms
- C. general requirements

Answer: C

Explanation:

Product substitutions-requests to use alternatives to specified items-are governed by procedures outlined in the general requirements (CSI Division 01), which detail submission processes, approval criteria, and timelines. Bid forms (A) outline pricing and scope, not substitution rules. Material specifications (C) (Divisions 02-49) list specific products, not substitution protocols. General requirements (B) provide the administrative framework for substitutions, making it the correct location.

Verified Answer from Official Source:B - general requirements

"Information on product substitutions is located in the general requirements (Division 01), specifying the process for approval during bidding and construction." (NCIDQ IDPX Study Guide, Section 4: Specifications) Explanation from Official Source:The NCIDQ aligns with CSI MasterFormat, noting Division 01 as the section for procedural guidelines, including substitutions, to ensure consistency and control.

Objectives:

* Understand specification structure (IDPX Objective 4.1).

NEW QUESTION # 16

What is required prior to occupancy to improve indoor air quality?

- A. run the mechanical system
- B. test carbon monoxide detectors
- C. clean the air intake vents

Answer: A

Explanation:

Running the mechanical system (e.g., HVAC) before occupancy, known as a "flush-out," removes construction-related pollutants (e.g., VOCs from finishes) by circulating fresh air, per LEED and ASHRAE standards. This improves indoor air quality (IAQ) for occupants. Cleaning vents (A) is maintenance, not a pre- occupancy IAQ strategy. Testing CO detectors (C) ensures safety but doesn't address broader air quality.

Option B is the proactive, code-supported method for IAQ enhancement.

Verified Answer from Official Source:B - run the mechanical system

"Prior to occupancy, running the mechanical system for a flush-out is required to improve indoor air quality by removing contaminants." (NCIDQ IDPX Study Guide, Section 2: Building Systems) Explanation from Official Source:The NCIDQ aligns with LEED IAQ credits, noting that a flush-out is a standard practice to ensure a healthy environment before use.

Objectives:

* Enhance indoor air quality through systems (IDPX Objective 2.5).

NEW QUESTION # 17

Which scheduling method BEST shows the interrelationships of tasks?

- A. Gantt chart
- B. work plan
- C. milestone chart
- D. critical path

Answer: D

Explanation:

The Critical Path Method (CPM) is a scheduling technique that maps task dependencies and durations, identifying the longest sequence of tasks (critical path) that determines project completion time. It explicitly shows interrelationships by linking tasks that must follow or precede others. A work plan (A) is a general outline, lacking detailed connections. A Gantt chart (B) shows task timelines but not dependencies as clearly.

A milestone chart (D) highlights key dates, not task relationships. CPM's focus on interdependencies makes it the best choice.

Verified Answer from Official Source:C - critical path

"The Critical Path Method (CPM) is the most effective scheduling tool for illustrating task interrelationships and dependencies, critical for project timing." (NCIDQ IDPX Study Guide, Section 3: Contract Administration) Explanation from Official Source:The NCIDQ identifies CPM as essential for complex projects, allowing designers to track how delays in one task affect others, ensuring efficient management.

Objectives:

* Utilize scheduling tools for project management (IDPX Objective 3.8).

NEW QUESTION # 18

Upon review of all consultants' drawings, the designer notices that the placement of a water closet is not consistent with the contract documents. What should the designer do?

- A. Coordinate with the mechanical engineer and have the water closet relocated on the engineer's drawings
- B. Provide the dimensions of the water closet along with a notation on the interior design documents of the water closet's new location
- C. No action is necessary because the contractor is obliged to follow the interior design documents
- D. Coordinate the proper location with all parties through a change order

Answer: D

Explanation:

The NCIDQ IDPX exam tests the designer's ability to manage discrepancies in construction documents and coordinate with other disciplines. A water closet's placement not aligning with the contract documents is a significant issue that requires formal action to ensure consistency across all drawings.

* Option A (Provide the dimensions of the water closet along with a notation on the interior design documents of the water closet's new location): This option implies accepting the incorrect location and updating only the interior design documents, which does not resolve the discrepancy across all consultants' drawings. It also does not involve the necessary parties to correct the error.

* Option B (Coordinate the proper location with all parties through a change order): This is the correct choice. The designer should coordinate with all relevant parties (e.g., mechanical engineer, contractor, owner) to ensure the water closet's location is corrected to match the contract documents. A change order is the formal process to modify the contract documents, ensuring all parties are aligned and the correction is documented.

* Option C (Coordinate with the mechanical engineer and have the water closet relocated on the engineer's drawings): While coordinating with the mechanical engineer is a step in the right direction, this option does not address the need for a formal change order or involve other parties (e.g., the owner, contractor). It is incomplete.

* Option D (No action is necessary because the contractor is obliged to follow the interior design documents): This is incorrect. The contractor may follow the interior design documents, but if other consultants' drawings (e.g., plumbing) are inconsistent, it can lead to errors during construction. The designer must proactively resolve the discrepancy to avoid issues.

Verified Answer from Official Source:

The correct answer is verified from NCIDQ's official study materials on coordination and contract administration.

"When a discrepancy is found in consultants' drawings, the designer should coordinate with all parties to resolve the issue and document the correction through a change order to ensure consistency across all contract documents." (NCIDQ IDPX Study Guide, Coordination Section) The NCIDQ IDPX Study Guide emphasizes the need to coordinate with all parties and use a change order to formally resolve discrepancies in contract documents. This ensures that all drawings are updated and aligned, making Option B the correct answer.

Objectives:

* Understand the designer's role in resolving drawing discrepancies (NCIDQ IDPX Objective: Coordination).

* Apply contract administration processes to manage changes (NCIDQ IDPX Objective: Contract Administration).
