NEW QUESTION # 18

Which API is used within the Juniper Mist solution?

- A. RPC
- B. JSON
- C. REST
- D. SOAP

Answer: C

Explanation:

Juniper Mist Cloud uses an open RESTful API framework for integration, automation, and programmability across all Mist services, including Wired Assurance, Marvis, and AI-driven automation.

"All Mist Cloud services are built on a 100% open REST API framework, allowing customers to automate configuration, monitoring, and troubleshooting through standard REST calls." The REST API exchanges data in JSON format, but the API type itself is REST, not JSON.

Option A (REST): Correct - Mist services expose 100% REST-based APIs.

Option B (SOAP): Incorrect - SOAP is an older XML-based protocol not used in Mist.

Option C (JSON): Incorrect - JSON is the data format, not the API type.

Option D (RPC): Incorrect - not used in the Mist Cloud architecture.

- A. The control plane rewrites the destination MAC address of the packet.
- B. The control plane encapsulates the traffic.
- C. The control plane learns the IP addresses of end-user devices.
- D. The control plane learns the MAC addresses of end-user devices.

Answer: C,D

Explanation:

In an EVPN-VXLAN fabric, the control plane operates over BGP EVPN and is responsible for distributing endpoint reachability information (MAC and IP) among VTEPs. The data plane, by contrast, performs encapsulation and forwarding.

"The EVPN control plane uses BGP to exchange MAC and IP address reachability information between VTEPs, enabling efficient forwarding and loop prevention without relying on flood-and-learn behavior." Option A: Incorrect - encapsulation occurs in the data plane, not the control plane.

Option B: Correct - the control plane distributes MAC-to-VTEP mappings.

Option C: Correct - the control plane also distributes IP-to-MAC associations (Type 2 and Type 5 EVPN routes).

Option D: Incorrect - the control plane does not alter packet headers.
