It assesses how to strategically improve supply chain functions, focusing on a key skill like "Strategic Decision Making".

CIPS Supply Network Design L6M9 Prüfungsfragen mit Lösungen (Q61-Q66):

61. Frage

Which of the following describes a Proprietary Network?

- A. A privately owned and controlled group
- B. A network that has both horizontal and vertical structures
- C. A relationship that is one-sided
- D. The sharing of materials in an informal setting

Antwort: A

Begründung:

A Proprietary Network is a privately owned and controlled group.

* Option B refers to a Social Network

* Option C describes a Bureaucratic Network

* Option D refers to an Asymmetric Network

Tip: Learn these definitions well, as they frequently appear in exam questions! (See LO 1.1)

62. Frage

A cupcake manufacturing organisation uses a 'management by exception' technique when it comes to planning and control. What does this mean?

- A. Exceptional performance is rewarded, for example through staff bonus schemes
- B. Reporting only takes place when non-compliance occurs
- C. Plans and control activities are created based on historical performance
- D. Audits and other control activities are completed by an outsourced company to ensure there is no bias in the investigations

Antwort: B

Begründung:

Management by exception means that reporting only occurs when non-compliance happens or when results are outside the norm. In the case of a cupcake factory, there might be no quality control measures in place, but if an issue arises (e.g., food poisoning complaint), an investigation would be conducted. This is a risky strategy for such an organisation. (See p. 189)

63. Frage

The operations department of ABC Ltd has recently launched a new product. The product is manufactured within a large factory and then sent to retailers for sale. The department has a system in place which details the components required for the product and the quantities required to fulfil customer demand. The system works online and links to other areas of the business including HR and finance.

So far, several large orders have been placed for the product from different retailers. The Chief Operations Officer (COO) has decided to programme the completion of the orders based on when the orders were placed.

The benefit of this strategy is that it will give each customer a similar lead time. Thus far no buffer stock has been created as products are only created when orders are received.

Three teams are required to make the product and the product flows from team one to team two to team three, each team adding a component to the product. Unfortunately, team two are short staffed and are completing their work at a slower rate than the other two teams. This is a huge consideration for the COO as it will impact upon the capacity of the organisation.

The retailers have all signed contracts with ABC Ltd and the COO is extremely happy that they are long term contracts. Contract 1 is with retailer X and the price is set for three years. Contract 2 is with retailer Y and is a five year contract where the price will be reviewed annually in line with CPI. Contract 3 has a variable pricing mechanism based on the volume of products ordered.

What capacity strategy is being used?

- A. Capacity-lag
- B. Capacity-led
- C. Demand-led
- D. Demand-lag

Antwort: C

Begründung:

The company follows a demand-led strategy since production capacity is adjusted based on actual customer orders. No stock is produced without confirmed demand. (See LO 2.2)

64. Frage

Which of the following are contract pricing arrangements used to control costs? Select ALL that apply.

- A. Gain-share agreement
- B. Open book
- C. Fixed price
- D. Variable price
- E. Use of price index

Antwort: A,B,C,E

Begründung:

* Fixed price: The supplier cannot change the price, ensuring cost control.

* Use of price index: Prices can only change based on an agreed index, preventing arbitrary cost increases.

* Gain-share agreement: The supplier is incentivized to save costs as they share in the profits, reducing the likelihood of overcharging.

* Open book: The buyer has full visibility of the supplier's pricing, preventing overcharging.

Variable price (D) is incorrect because it allows the supplier to change prices freely, making cost control difficult. (See p.199)

65. Frage

Keisi is the new Operations Manager at Warehousing Logistics Corporation. She is reviewing several products sold by the organisation and deciding on the best warehousing options available. Keisi is looking at item 56283. This item is low cost, not sold in high volumes, but important to customers. Which of the following stocking policies should be used for this item?

- A. Stock reviewed monthly
- B. Maintain an average of 3 days stock
- C. No stock held locally
- D. Never be out of stock

Antwort: B

Begründung:

The item described is a 'regular seller'-important to customers but not sold in high volumes. Keeping an average of 3 days' stock balances demand with the effort required for stock management. "Never be out of stock" is only for high-demand, critical items, while "monthly stock review" might lead to lost sales. (See p. 158)
