Router 1 was experiencing a DDoS attack that was traced to interface gigabitethernet0/1.

Which statement about this configuration is true?

- A. Router 1 accepts source addresses that have a match in the FIB that indicates it is reachable through a real interface
- B. Router 1 accepts source addresses on interface gigabitethernet0/1 that are private addresses
- C. Router 1 drops all traffic that ingresses interface gigabitethernet0/1 that has a FIB entry that exits a different interface
- D. Router 1 accepts all traffic that ingresses and egresses interface gigabitethernet0/1

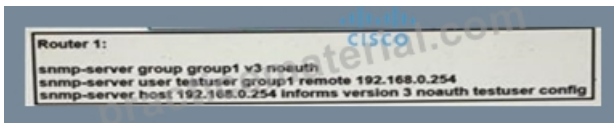

Answer: A

Explanation:

The configuration `ip verify unicast source reachable-via any` under interface `gigabitethernet0/1` on Router 1 ensures that incoming packets have a source IP address that matches an entry in the FIB (Forwarding Information Base), indicating it's reachable via a real interface. This helps mitigate attacks by dropping traffic with unreachable source addresses. References := Cisco
